DOLLFUSS SHOT IN NAZI REVOLT

Today

It's Already Smashed Out of Hawaii, What? Dillinger, Jealousy, Cash So They Spend $75,516

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

Senator Borah denounces monopoly as the cause of all our troubles, and says "smash the monopolies." As it happens, happenings since 1929 have smashed the monopolies fairly well.

If anybody has a monopoly that you would like to own you can get it at a bargain.

Senator Borah says purchasing power must be restored to the great mass of the people. President Roosevelt agrees, combines deeds with words, according to the recommendation of the other Roosevelt, and has handed out thousands of millions of dollars, thinly disguised as wages, saying in effect, "Go and buy yourself something."

Hundreds of millions are paid to the farmer for not working, leaving fields unplanted and other millions have been paid to cotton growers for ploughing cotton under.

What more could you do, except gather income taxpayers together, take their capital from them, what they have left, and distribute that also.

The President reaching Hawaii is greeted with the friendly "Aloha," also with a remark which when "the good" Tom Williams repeated it sounded like "moloki-hoi."

The President will have a string of flowers put around his neck, and then, like little children that have said "Merry Christmas" to papa and mamma, Hawaiians like other good Americans, will stand around, wondering what they will get. It must be a wonderful thing to say as President Roosevelt can say, "Here, have a billion, or two."

What population will Hawaii develop in time, with its present mixture described by Time as 146,000 Japanese, 6000 Filipinos, 27,000 Chinese, 22,000 Polynesians, 29,000 Portuguese, 7000 Puerto Ricans, 45,000 whites and 31,000 mixed breeds.

These human "breeds" are intermarrying, carrying out on the little island on a small scale, the process of mixing two-legged races that has gone on ever since the first Cromagnon gentleman type met the first Neanderthal lady type in the old Stone Age.

There is nothing more important than these mixtures of races, for real peace on earth and good will toward men will not come, probably, until the earth has only ONE race, and therefore no "enemy."

Already imagination starts building the Dillinger "romance." The lady in the case, whom criminals would call "the finger-woman," because she obliged the detectives by putting her finger on Dillinger, is supposed to have hidden in the woods with the bandit. Jealous rage seized her when another woman came to join the killer and she betrayed him to his death.

The reward of $15,000 probably had more to do with the "finger" than any jealous rage.

"Jealousy is cruel as the grave; the coals thereof are coals of fire, which hath a most vehement flame," as we learn from Solomon.

But in these practical days there is something about $15,000 that is also powerful and vehement.

Mr. and Mrs. Peters the was "night man" in a small Hoboken, N. J., lunch room, won $25,516 in a sweepstake lottery, and felt that they should show that winning, in a lottery, is a good thing. They drove to collect their money in a rented 16-cylinder car with a liveried chauffeur, and "opened" champagne.

Any expert accountant can show them that four per cent on $25,516 will not stand that strain. Some "get-rich-quick" expert will probably show them how to change $25,516 into $10,000,000—then Mr. Peters will be "night man" again.

Conditions in Vienna are bad.

DILLINGER'S 'GIRL IN RED' TALKS

Details of Trap That Killed Bandit Bared by Companion

By Associated Press

Chicago, July 25—From the "girl in red" police learned today more about how John Dillinger walked into the trap that ended with death his career of crime.

The "girl in red," one of the two women who were with the Indiana outlaw just before he was killed by federal bullets, was Mrs. Anna Sage, 42, brown-haired and brown-eyed. Police arrested her last night at her home just around the corner from the Biograph theater, out of which Dillinger walked unsuspectingly Sunday night to his death.

REPORTED AT GAME

Mrs. Sage told police she knew John Dillinger as "Jim Lawrence," and that he posed as an employe of the Chicago Board of Trade.

From the "girl in red" after long questioning by the police came the story of the last woman Dillinger associated with, named by Mrs. Sage as Mrs. Roy Keele, 26-year-old divorced wife of a Gary, Ind., policeman—of how Dillinger spent his time just prior to the fatal shooting, and of how he said he went to New York recently "on a business trip." He was also reported to have witnessed a Chicago baseball game.

But it was not learned whether Mrs. Sage or Mrs. Keele furnished the information which trapped Dillinger. Both fled from the scene of the shooting, but Mrs.

MABEY GIVEN THREE-YEAR JAIL TERM

Broker Sentenced in Industrial Bank Collapse Case

Herbert S. Mabey, Boston broker, today was sentenced to from three to five years in state prison—second conviction obtained in the Industrial Bank & Trust Co. collapse by a woman prosecutor, Assistant Attorney-General Jennie Loitman Barron.

Sentence was imposed in Suffolk Superior Court by Judge David F. Dillon after he had announced a finding of guilty.

Mabey was tried at a jury-waived session last week on a charge of using the name of the H. F. Staples Corporation, of which he was an officer, to obtain $10,000 from the Industrial Bank.

STAY WITHDRAWN

At the request of Mabey's counsel, William J. Berman, court at first stayed execution of the sentence on a question of error. The stay was withdrawn after a bench conference at which it is understood an agreement was reached that prosecution of the broker on several other charges would be postponed for at least six months.

Mabey then prepared to go to prison as this agreement ended his new trial before Judge Dillon on charges of conspiring to misapply funds and substitute inadequate securities.

Mabey, whose financial dealings have been under official scrutiny for years, was sentenced in 1932 to two years in the house of correction for conspiracy to steal in connection with sale of stock in another bank now defunct, the Medford Trust Co.

CO-DEFENDANT JAILED

His appeal in that case is still pending before the Supreme court.

His co-defendant at the latest trial, Charles B. Strout, former president of the Industrial, yesterday pleaded guilty to conspiracy and was sentenced to a year in jail.

Last week at a trial preceding Mabey's, and also prosecuted by Mrs. Barron, Strout was found guilty of illegally certifying a check drawn on the Industrial Bank and was sentenced to another year in jail.

Mabey's wife died recently.

MINISTER FEY

AUSTRIA IS SEIZED; PRESIDENT HELD; MANY MEN ARE KILLED

By Associated Press

Vienna, July 25—Chancellor Englebert Dollfuss, the little dictator who ruled Austria for two years, was reported by a police commissioner today to have been shot and seriously wounded in the course of a Nazi "putsch" to capture the government of Austria. The police officer said Dollfuss has resigned.

By International News Service

Vienna, July 25—Government troops and police stormed the chancellory at 5:15 o'clock this afternoon (12:15 p. m., E. D. T.) and arrested the Nazi terrorists who were holding prisoner Chancellor Englebert Dollfuss and three members of his cabinet.

By Associated Press

Vienna, July 25—Nazis made a violent bid for the power in Austria today, capturing Chancellor Englebert Dollfuss, distator of Austria, and members of his cabinet.

Fighters swarmed through the streets of Vienna, men were killed, and the trouble was reported to have spread as far as Innsbruck and Kalgenfurt.

In the latter city, President Wilhelm Miklas was said to have been captured by the federal army.

Dollfuss and his ministers were trapped in the federal chancellery.

Armed men of his loyal Fascist Heimwehr (home guard) of the federal army, and of the federal police poured into the Ballhausplatz upon which the chancellery is located.

Machine guns were mounted on roof tops at strategic points throughout the city. Some of them poured smashing volleys into the government radio station from which, as a spark to the political conflagration, an announcement had come that Dollfuss had resigned and a pro-Nazi politician, Anton Rintelen, had been made chancellor.

At the height of the confusion, with rumors flying about, from the same studio came the announcement that peace reigned throughout Austria.

The second announcement came after authorities had recaptured the station where, earlier, eight men had killed a police guard and taken over control of the broadcasting. They were supposed to have been Nazis.

NAZIS SEIZE DOLLFUSS AND PRESIDENT IN AUSTRIAN COUP

VIENNA UNDER GUNS; TROOPS BATTLE TO HOLD RADIO

An officer of the Heimwehr declared that Dollfuss was the prisoner of Nazis. With Dollfuss was said to be Emil Fey, minister without portfolio and a Heimwehr leader, and Ministers Karwinsky, Berger, and Von Walde-Negg.

Prince Ernst Von Starhemberg, vice chancellor and head of the Heimwehr, and General Zehner, under-secretary of Defense, together with Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg were said to be outside the building.

As the afternoon wore on, the situation in Vienna grew more tense, if that could be possible. Soldiers marched in fighting formation down the streets. They dodged under cover of the buildings as they advanced toward the Ballhausplatz along the Ringstrasse.

Denies Fey Shot By Nazi Captors

They deployed in the side streets and, suddenly, it could be seen that in many cases the federal troops had taken up positions facing the Heimwehr men.

A diplomat who made contact with Prince Von Starhemberg said that the prince has assumed the leadership of those ministers who were not imprisoned in the chancellery and has organized a headquarters for them in the ministry of defense.

This same diplomat denied a rumor that Fey had been shot and said that at 4 p. m., Fey had talked from a window at the chancellery with the police officer in charge of the forces outside.

An announcement that Dollfuss had resigned to be succeeded by Dr. Anton Rintelen, a pro-Nazi often mentioned for the chancellorship, was broadcast over the official government radio, but was immediately denied by the official Austrian News Agency.

Troops Warn Nazi "Free 'Em or We Fire"

The broadcast threw the general public into bewilderment. The populace saw armed police dash throughg the streets.

The radio station was surrounded by Fascist Heimwehr (Home Guard) troops.

The announcement of Dollfuss capture was made by the commander of the Heimwehr troops which surrounded the federal chancellery and demanded the liberation of Emil Fey, minister without portfolio in the cabinet and a leader of the Heimwehr. The officer shouted to the guard at the chancellery entrance:

"If Fey is not out of here in 10 minutes, we attack!"

It was not immediately clear how the rival political groups were lining up.

At the moment of this dispatch it looks as though an armed clash may come between the Heimwehr troops and the police. It was recalled that a clash between the Heimwehr and Federal army soldiers was narrowly averted in Graz several weeks ago.

Rattle of Guns Echo Through Capital

Federal police, armed with rifles with fixed bayonets, moved into the square in front of the Federal chancellery in an attempt to drive the Heimwehr troops away from the building.

As this was being written, shortly after 2:30 p. m., shooting had not commenced in the square, but rifle fire can be heard from the direction of the radio broadcasting studio in the inner city.

The regular army and the Heimwehr were reported to have opened fire upon the radio station, 10 miles outside the city, but there was no immediate confirmation of the actual activities there.

Revolt Against Dollfuss Suppressed, Rome Told

By Associated Press

Rome, July 25—Officials of the Austrian legation here, after a telephone call to Vienna, said the Nazi putsch at Vienna has been suppressed.

The Nazi effort to seize the government "died stillborn," the legation said.

Legation officials said the Nazis had forced their way into the government radio station, and that they had broadcast a report that Dollfuss had resigned and that he had been taken prisoner.

Officials added that federal police had quickly driven the Nazis from the radio station, and that Dollfuss is now in complete control of the situation, with the army guarding public buildings and the police running down groups of Nazis in the outskirts of Vienna.

The legation said the Heimwehr had not figured in the putsch.

France Fears Dollfuss Fate; Sees Peril in Plight

Paris, July 25—Official circles today expressed worry over the danger to Chancellor Dollfuss of an Austrian Nazi Putsch.

France is pledged to the support of Austrian independence, and fears that a Nazi revolution in that country might lead to internal and complications.

France has been particularly friendly to Dollfuss because the government here thought he best was able to maintain a stable administration in Austria.

Two girls were knocked unconscious and several other escaped injury today when an automobile driven by Jack MacDonald, of Beech street, Belmont, ran into them at California and Dalby streets, Newton.

Helen Neville, 19, of Meade street, Allston, and Angelina Contesto, 20, of 24 Portsmouth street, Brighton, were taken to Newton Hospital for treatment.

More Mystery! Police Hunt Acting Governor

Governor Ely's executive council called out the state police today in an effort to find out who is acting governor in Massachusetts.

While the council members waited impatiently at the State House for someone to preside over their weekly meeting, Lieutenant-Governor Gaspar G. Bacon was sought at Sandoff Woods Hole and Secretary of State Frederick W. Cook was the object of a search out along the Mohawk Trail.

Governor Ely is attending a governors' conference at Mackinac Island, Mich.

BACON OUT OF TOWN

Usually, when the Governor is to be absent from the state, the meeting of the executive council is cancelled. But no cancellation notice was sent out, and members gathered to pass upon several important matters, including the Ely appointment of Correction Commissioner Frederick J. Dillon to be a probate judge, Representative John V. Mahoney to be an Elevated trustee and Arthur T. Lyman to be correction commissioner.

The councillors expected Bacon to preside. At his law office he was said to be out of town. At his summer place at Woods Hole he was said to be yachting.

COOK ON MOHAWK TRAIL

Attempts were made to contact Cook, who was reported to be attending a town clerks' convention at an inn on the Mohawk Trail.

The situation had no precedent and was the subject of many dogmatic opinions expressed by State House "sea lawyers." Some thought that Eugene Fraser, of Lynn, as the senior council member, should preside.

Waited 18 Years, Husband Is Freed

Fred B. Hamilton of 18 Walters street, Salem, was free of marital ties today, after he had testified in court that he had waited 18 years for his wife to return to him.

AUSTRIA REVOLT CAUSE TOLD

By Associated Press

The political situation in Austria has for months been one of potential danger. Early in the year, actual civil war broke out between the government and the Socialists which, at that time, controlled the municipal administration of Vienna, the capital.

Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, head of the national government, has remained firmly in control throughout the period of bickerings and warfare.

ALLIES OF HITLER

His Fascist Heimwehr (home guard) put down the rebellious Socialists and he further conducted a widespread campaign against Nazi organizations, declaring them allied to Germany rather than to their homeland.

Acts of terrorism—mainly bombings—have kept the nation in a continual torment. Dollfuss decreed that bombers should be bomber was hanged. He was a Socialist, however, not a Nazi.

One of the main announced aims of the Nazis in Austria has been to create an "anschluss" (joining) with Germany, uniting the Germanic peoples.

BOMBINGS INCREASE

But Dollfuss has held steadfastly to his ideal of a "patriotic front," an ideal of Austria for the Austrians.

Two months ago, when Adolph Hitler of Germany went to Italy, to confer with Premier Mussolini, it was said that the two had agreed to the independence of Austria. Political observers in Europe immediately advanced the opinion that the difficulties between the Austrian government and the Nazis would end, but instead the bombings, if anything, were redoubled.

AUTO LESSON MAY COST LIFE

Learning how to drive an automobile today may cost Mrs. Mary Flaherty of 37 Bates avenue, Quincy, her life. Her name is on the danger list at the Quincy City Hospital.

Mrs. Flaherty suffered severe head injuries, a possible fractured skull and a broken leg when she lost control of the car and crashed into a tree on Putnam street, Quincy.

Frightened when her car went over a curbstone and she was unable to bring the machine to a dead stop, she seized her instructor, Mrs. Charlotte Woods, 35, of 31 Endicott street, Quincy.

Mrs. Woods was unable to take hold of the emergency brake, so tightly did Mrs. Flaherty grasp her. She received minor cuts and bruises.

The accident happened at Putnam street and Merrymount road.

HANGING SPARK FOR AUSTRIAN OUTBREAK

By Universal Service

Vienna, July 25—A Socialist was hanged here within a few hours of his conviction on a charge of bombing and the government answered menacing demonstration protests by rounding up and imprisoning 2000 of his fellows. Another member of the Socialist Schutzbund was sent to prison for life.

The man who was hanged was Joseph Gerl, a Czechoslovakian member of the Austrian Schutzbund.

Gerl, defiant to the end, uttered these last words:

"Long live the Socialists! Down with Dollfuss!"

NEWS SPREADS QUICKLY

News of Gerl's hanging spread rapidly through the city, causing demonstrations in the workmen's quarters. Demonstrators were dispersed by heavily armed police, who seized Socialists indiscriminately and flung them in jail.

All public buildings were guarded by police armed with machine guns in anticipation of riots. There were similar demonstrations at Linz, Wels, Hall and Innsbruck. It was reported that Nazis participated in the demonstrations throughout the nation.

NAZI TROUBLE FEARED

The roundup of Socialists has been going on for three days.

Government circles also feared trouble with Nazis following the appearance of threats to bomb Catholic cathedrals and kidnap priests if any Nazis are put to death for bombings or other offenses against the state.

Point was lent to this fear by the statement of Gerl, an avowed Socialist, when he said during his trial:

"I would prefer to live under the Nazi regime than under the Dollfuss government."

Nazi Newspaper Reports 1000 Seized in Austria

Berlin, July 25—The government-controlled newspaper Deutsche Zeitung, in a dispatch from Vienna, reported that between 900 and 1000 Communists and Socialists in Austria had been arrested for planning an alleged revolt against the government of Chancellor Dollfuss.

The newspaper said that hundreds of those arrested were seized in the Austrian provinces.

RAIN TO BREAK NEW ENGLAND DROUTH

Today's clouds mean showers, but no real rain to break the drouth and permit reopening of the woodlands, the weather bureau announced this afternoon.

Showers are due at infrequent intervals for another 24 hours, but Forecaster G. H. Noyes does not believe the rain will be anywhere near heavy enough to end the forest-fire hazard. It may revive parched lawns.

The drouth continues in other sections and the whole country is in the grip with 700 persons already dead and the property loss running into millions.

MIDWEST SUFFERS MOST

While New England has suffered considerable damage from the heat and dry spell, the total is nothing in comparison to the ravages wrought in midwestern states.

The death total stood at 655 for the 22 states most affected at 2 p. m., yesterday and at 8 p. m. it was 719. Half of the casualties were in Missouri and Illinois.

The Chicago weather bureau reported the hottest weather ever endured there—104.8 degrees, officially 105, at 2:40 p. m. The previous high was 103 in 1903.

St. Louis' new high was 110.2 with 29 deaths for Tuesday and 143 for the season. Quincy, Ill., with 111 had had temperatures above 108 for seven consecutive days, and above 90 for 31 days. Lifetime new highs reported included Peru, Ill., 108; Centralia, Ill., 111; Milwaukee, 103; Ottawa, Ill., 111, and Independence, Kas., 112.

117 IS REPORTED

The hottest town, officially, was Vinita, in northwest Oklahoma, at 117, although more exciting but less official reports were numerous. They were topped by a reading of 147 on a thermometer in the sun outside a physician's office in Ellis, Kansas.

Yet 50 miles from Denver tourists battled with snowballs when one inch of snow fell on Mount Evans.

By Universal Service

Washington, July 25—A $20,000,000 allotment for federal relief in 16 states during August was announced by Assistant Administrator Lawrence Westbrook.

Several allotments went to drouth states, where 400,000 families are now on relief rolls, Westbrook said. Direct drouth appropriations were $2,300,000 in South Dakota, $600,000 in Nebraska, and $300,000 in Idaho.

Heroic measures are being taken to provide water on the sun-baked prairies. Thousands of men on relief jobs are at work sinking wells and laying pipe lines to lakes and springs, Westbrook said.

FATHER ADMITS KILLING GIRL FOR $400

By Universal Service.

Houston, Tex., July 25—So that he could collect the $400 insurance he had placed on the life of his four-year-old daughter, a 27-year-old unemployed father strangled the little girl to death, authorities said the man confessed here.

The prisoner is E. H. Stuart. Officers said he confessed that he carried the sleeping child, Dortha, to a shallow creek a few miles north of the city, held her in 18 inches of water so that she could not scream and choked her to death. Then he drove back to Houston and ordered a hamburger at a stand. The officers quoted him as saying:

"But I couldn't eat it."

The body of the little girl was found later. Stuart at first denied knowing anything about his daughter's death, but when he was shown her clothes, he broke down, officers said, and admitted he had killed her to get the insurance money so he could care for her twin sister. A murder charge was filed against him.

Gloria Vanderbilt's Millions Pawn in Court Battle

MRS. GLORIA VANDERBILT

GLORIA VANDERBILT

Millions of Gloria Vanderbilt, 10, above, is the stake in court proceedings started in New York by her mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, for control of her estate, valued at nearly $4,000,000. Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, an aunt, and Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, maternal grandmother, have filed "interested persons" petitions in the litigation. MRS. HARRY PAYNE WHITNEY

Vanderbilt Clan Fights Over Gloria's Riches

New York, July 25—Ten-year-old Gloria Vanderbilt—and her millions—have involved three of America's socially famous families in litigation.

Surrogate Foley will begin hearings tomorrow in the case, started by the child's mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, to get legal control of her and become co-guardian of her estate.

PETITIONS MYSTERY

Counsel—fourteen lawyers have been retained—declined to discuss the matter, but it came into the open with the filing of "interested persons" petitions by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the child's aunt, and Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, Gloria's maternal grandmother. What their interest was, none would say.

Gloria inherited $2,500,000 from the elder Cornelius Vanderbilt's estate through her father, Reginald C. Vanderbilt. This sum has grown to $2,876,017. The child recently inherited another million from the dowager Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Gloria's mother was only 20 years old when Reginald Vanderbilt was lost at sea nine years ago, and George W. Wickersham was named guardian for the child. Last year the former attorney general became ill and Thomas E. Gilchrist was made co-guardian.

MOTHER GOT RAISE

Now Mrs. Vanderbilt says she is of age and amply able to direct her daughter's affairs.

After the sportsman's death, appraisal of the Reginald Vanderbilt estate revealed his widow's share to be only $82,000. Last year, when little Gloria was allowed $4000 a month out of a yearly income of $116,500, her mother was trying to live on $112 a month.

3 YOUTHS TAKEN AT GUNPOINT

Three Chelsea youths, two of them on parole from reformatory schools, were captured at gunpoint today, after Chelsea police had given chase to two and fired shots into the air to halt them.

John Cherbitsky, 16, of Williams street, paroled from Lyman and Michael Kuvalchick, 19, of Spruce street, paroled from Shirley were arrested by a squad of nine patrolmen who had gone to a grocery on Arlington street on a report of burglars.

Their companion, Thaddeus Sehirl, 16, of Franklin avenue, was taken by a police sergeant in the store. All three were charged with breaking and entering in the night time and larceny.

On the arrival of the police Cherbitsky and Kuvalchick fled, leaving their frightened pal alone in the store. He did not resist arrest.

Bank Bandits Hold Girl as Hostage

By Universal Service

Oxford, Kansas, July 25—Seizing five persons, one a woman, as hostages, four bandits escaped here in a hail of vigilante bullets after looting the Oxford State Bank of $4000.

Their prisoners were Homer Jester, cashier of the bank; Daisy Bay, bookkeeper; P. E. Donley, assistant cashier; Marion Cameron, lumber company employe, and J. C. Campbell.

Four of the hostages were released a short distance outside of town. Donley was held until the bandit car neared the Oklahoma line.

In the gunfire at the bank, two persons were slightly wounded and one of the bandits was said to have been shot in the face.

FRANCE OPENS AIR 'WARFARE'

By International News Service

Paris, July 25—Wings over Europe were in order today with mock aerial warfare over southeastern France, aerial maneuvers continuing over London and Belgium announcing a military aviation review soon will be held over Brussels.

Front pages of the Paris press today gave much space to the English maneuvers, as well as those of France which were transferred to the south of the country in recognition of anti-war protests from Socialists and Communist sources.

Lyons was "attacked" today by 100 planes. The defenses consisted of batteries of 75 and 100 millimetre guns, a network of anti-aircraft signal posts linked by telephone to a central keyboard and pursuit squadrons.

By government order lights will be shut off in most cities of the area tonight. The attacks will continue for three days.

3 Escape Glass Crash

Crashing to the sidewalk, a large pane of glass loosed from a window on a building at Adams street nearly struck three men and sent a score of pedestrians scampering for safety.

Allston 'Clue' to 'Baby Face'

A tip that George ("Baby Face") Nelson, new public enemy No. 1, was seen drinking beer at the Allston depot, with a girl, "with a very large mouth," sent police scurrying there.

But "Baby Face," girl and tipster all had disappeared on their arrival, if they ever had been there.

Pope to Quit Vatican for Vacation

By Universal Service

Rome, July 25—Five years ago today Pope Pius XI went several hundred feet outside Vatican City to signalize termination of the 59-year voluntary imprisonment of the Popes, a liberation he has increased annually.

Within a few days he will begin a two-month vacation at Castel Gandolfo 15 miles from Rome, the new summer Papal villa he twice visited during its reconstruction.

The Pope had intended to start his vacation early this month. But when it was learned there would be international crew races on the little lake near Castel Gandolfo the third week of July, his advisers decided it would be better to postpone the vacation until after the races, because of the crowds.

The vacation will be the Pontiff's first sojourn outside the Vatican since he became Pope. From his summer palace, located on a hill 2000 feet above Rome, he will be able to see the dome of St. Peter's Cathedral.

The journey to Castle Gandolfo will be made by automobile. It is expected to attract little public notice. But five years ago thousands flocked to the columned piazza before St. Peter's and kneeling in the street, cheered as the Pope was carried a few hundred feet across the square in his golden chair.

When Rome fell to Italian troops in 1870, the reigning Pope imposed upon himself imprisonment within the Vatican in protest against usurpation of the church's ancient temporal rights.

25 PLACES FACE POLICE PROBE IN LIQUOR DRIVE

Police and state liquor inspectors are concentrating on South End night clubs in the campaign to rid the city of license holders described by the Boston Licensing Board as "lawless and careless," and many of these appear due to be closed permanently.

Sergeants William Harrow and William G. D. Mutz of the Warren avenue station were assigned today to investigate 25 clubs in the South End, suspected of violating the license laws.

3 REVOKED

Acting Captain James J. Hershey said the police expected that at least seven more clubs, operating in the district, would be called before the licensing board before Aug. 1 to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked.

Already three places have had their permits revoked, one has been indefinitely suspended and others have been given final warnings to correct conditions. Some will appeal to the State Alcoholic Beverages Commission.

CLUBS P'AN BATTLE

Places which had already felt the sting of the board's lash were preparing to fight for their right to reopen. This meant carrying their cases to the state board, itself.

Hardest hit was the Silver Dollar Bar at 19 Boylston street, in the heart of the downtown section. Its license was "indefinitely suspended." That was all the board secretary, Louis Epple, would say.

But, the Silver Dollar management pointed out, the bar was enlarged only recently at a cost of $10,000. The Hotel Management Corporation, of which Ernest C. Mills is listed as clerk, has been conducting the place.

Other places coming under the interdict of the Boston licensing board were the Boston Business Men's Club on Portland street, the Columbus Italian Political Club of Roxbury, the Washington Lunch on Washington street. The last named is but 200 yards from the Cathedral of the Holy Cross.

The Clef Club, Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay, was warned to close promptly at midnight on Saturday and at 1 a. m. on other days. No women except waitresses are to be allowed in the quarters, the license board ordered.

PRESIDENT TO VISIT VOLCANO

By International News Service

Aboard U. S. S. Houston, off Hilo, Hawaii, July 25—President Roosevelt prepared to go ashore today from the cruiser Houston and motor to Hawaii's famous and spectacular volcano, Mauna Loa.

The chief executive saw the Hawaiian Islands for the first time yesterday when the Houston dropped anchor in Kailua Bay where he enjoyed several hours fishing.

Last night the Houston, accompanied by the cruiser New Orleans, proceeded around the island to Hilo Bay.

Governor Joseph Poindexter, who has arranged a warm welcome for the President when he visits Honolulu, 150 miles to the north on the Island of Oahu, will accompany the Presidential party to the volcano today.

Enroute to the peak, the President and his two sons will visit the Hawaiian national park, and then witness a parade at Hilo, the second largest city in the islands.

Welfare Workers Face Loss of Jobs

By the first of September 10 clerks, stenographers and bookkeepers in the Boston welfare department will be laid off and succeeded by men and women under civil service, it was revealed today by John C. L. Dowling, executive director of the board of public welfare.

Many of the temporary workers at the welfare offices have passed examinations and will be retained, it was said.

GIRLS OF 'MOB' PAY FINAL TRIBUTE AT DILLINGER'S COFFIN

SLAIN BANDIT HOME AFTER "PAROLE"

By JACK LAIT
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service.)

Mooresville, Ind., July 25—Unnoticed and unknown to the thousands of local admirers of the late John Dillinger who choked all roads in this section to file past the body of their notorious dead, were five women. They were strangers to his neighbors, but to me, at stranger, they were well known. At least four of them were ladies of the mob, the Dillinger mob.

Dillinger never "worked" close to home, so the genial Mooresville folk, on the biggest day of their lives, with thousands of visitors milling about, little suspected that rubbing shoulders with them were Pearl Elliott, Irene Williams, Mary Kinder, Margaret Behrens and "Babe" Longacre.

Within hand-shaking proximity to state troopers and detectives from many Indiana towns, Pearl Elliott and Irene Williams drew up to Harvey's undertaking plant, parked their smart little maroon-colored coupe, got out and fell into line.

NEVER "THROWN DOWN"

It took my breath away. There are in a hundred cities, official circulars from the Indiana state police, asking the apprehension of Pearl Elliott. She has long been sought as the advance fixer and brains as well as treasurer of the Dillinger gang. It was this former proprietress of a fancy Kokomo establishment who engaged apartments for the Dillinger bandits, before they came on to do their jobs, who divided the swag and who acted as judge and jury in their internecine gang quarrels.

I couldn't place Irene Williams, but she herself, told me that she was a friend of Johnny's.

I mosied up to them, and to the Elliott woman I said: "Hello, Pearl."

She wheeled.

"What brings you here?" I asked.

She hesitated, then answered:

"I came for a last look at Johnny. He never threw me down and I wouldn't dog it on him."

A few minutes later, I came face to face with Mary Kinder. Mary was arrested with Dillinger, Harry Pierpont and others at Tucson, Arizona. She is the sweetheart of Pierpont. She tried to marry him after he had been convicted, and with his handcuffs on he put his powerful arms around her and kissed her a passionate farewell—forever, for he is soon to "burn" in the Ohio big house.

Mary had been at the little Mooresville hotel all night, waiting for Dillinger's body. She wasn't registered, but she was there. I talked to her. She said:

"Touch on Johnny. I liked him. I used to cook frogs' legs for the mob, and Johnny went for 'em in a big way."

Then she sighed:

"If he'd lived a little longer, he'd have got my nam out. He was working on it all the time. So was I. So am I now. I'd dig him out with my finger-nails if I could. And I haven't given up hope yet."

SISTER WITH HER

With Mary was her sister, Margaret Behrens, wife of a bank-robber who is doing a long "stretch." Last time I had seen her she was being sweated by the state police in Indianapolis over some little help she had through to some of the Dillinger gang who were hiding out after breaking out.

She wouldn't talk. They got nowhere with her. A plenty hard-boiled girl, Margaret. Not a word. The state troopers still refer to her as "Silent Maggie." I tried to get her to talk. She wasn't entirely silent, but what she said I can't pass along—not in a newspaper.

Later, in a car with some others, I encountered "Babe" Longacre. It was Dillinger who gave her the pet-name, for he wrote her love letters addressed "Dear Babe." Dillinger once wrote to her:

"I only wish I had you and two or three sweet kids and was in South America with Jimmy with us."

Over 206 miles of scorching streets and roadways, under a killing sun that ricocheted back rays at 110 degrees, a seedy looking undertaker's wagon with an Indiana license carried the clay of John Dillinger back to his home town here. It was an almost silly anti-climax to his spectacular front-page existence.

Not one in a thousand of the city-folk and the yokelry whom we passed had the remotest inkling that in that 1929-model ordinary truck, in a wicker basket, lay the clay of the man whose every gesture in life has been a world-wide sensation.

INGLORIOUS IN DEATH

For 206 miles, from McCready's morgue in Chicago to Harvey's morgue in Mooresville, I sat and roasted in a car with my photographer, and looked at the back of that wagon.

Parts of the roads were to me familiar, for I had travelled those roads last spring when they were closed and patroled, and we were searched at every crossing because the whole Middle West was hunting the man whose corpse was rolling along in front of me, ingloriously unknown.

Several times we almost hit the vehicle, we had to stop so suddenly. Then I would see, jogging in a picnic seat beside the covered basket, Hubert, the half-brother of the dead, and, in front, with the driver, the father of the dead, a feeble, shabby 73-year-old farmer in a sweated shirt and baggy seersucker pants.

I had anticipated at least one motorcycle cop as an escort. Not one. We might have been parading behind a load of coal. We wound through Chicago and past the Loop. Thousands saw us and no one gave us a second look. I thought to myself that that wagon was an attraction that would outdraw the whole fair. But it didn't draw a pointed finger or a lifted eyebrow.

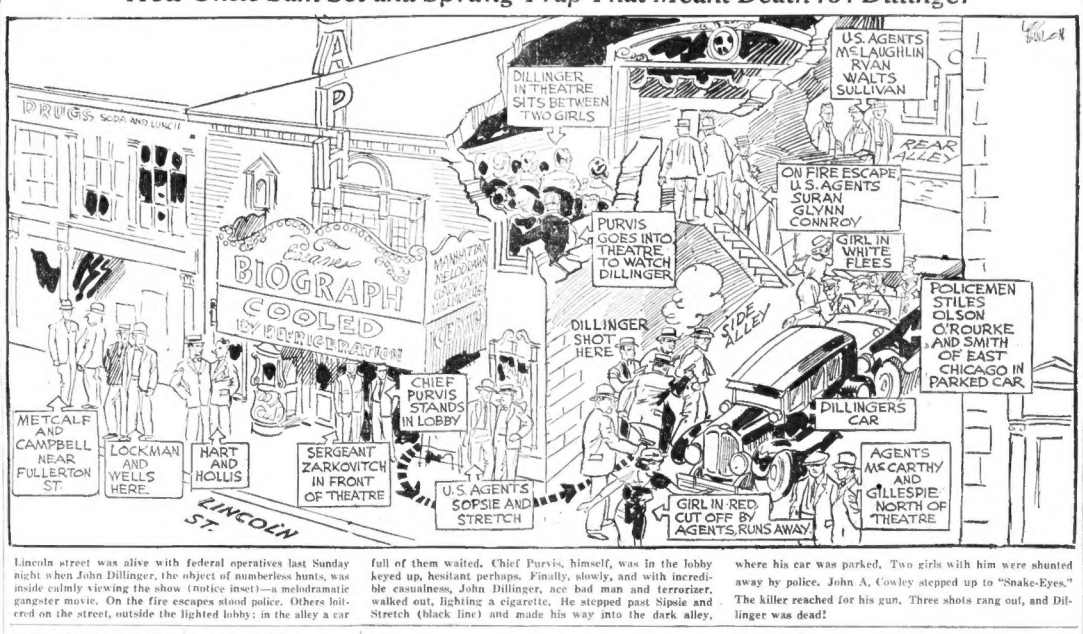
Though we had wasted so much time at the start, now the old gent was hell-bent to get where he was going. He wouldn't stand for a stop. We were parched. Some of the newspaper boys all but fainted from the unbroken heat. But old man Dillinger wouldn't stop.

He signalled one of the cars and it came up alongside and he shouted: "For mercy's sake, run on ahead and get me some water and pass it to me." The car sped up to 65, a container of water was gotten, the car slowed to let the horse come alongside. The reporter reached out the water and Dillinger reached out a hand.

The two cars came within an inch of colliding and a girl on the left of the road came within a shot of being killed. But the old man had his water, and we newsmen still had to keep on.

At last, after a six-hour drive, still unknown and neglected, we drove into Mooresville, a cortege and a cavalcade. There, however, we were expected. There the whole town had turned out to await us, and full of them waited, Chief Purvis, himself, was in the lobby keyed up, hesitant perhaps. Finally, slowly, and with incredible casualness, John Dillinger, ace bad man and terrorizer, walked out, lighting a cigarette. He stepped past Sipsie and Stretch (black line) and made his way into the dark alley, where his car was parked. Two girls with him were shunted away by police. John A. Cowley stepped up to "Snake-Eyes." The killer reached for his gun. Three shots rang out, and Dillinger was dead!

How Uncle Sam Set and Sprang Trap That Meant Death for Dillinger



Lincoln street was alive with federal operatives last Sunday night when John Dillinger, the object of numberless hunts, was inside calmly viewing the show (notice inset)—a melodramatic gangster movie. On the fire escapes stood police. Others loitered on the street, outside the lighted lobby; in the alley a car

'WOMAN IN RED' GIVES STORY

Sage returned, after changing her red dress. Mrs. Keefe declined to go back to the scene and later went to her mother's home in Fargo, N. D., Mrs. Sage said.

SECRECY PERSISTS

Secrecy, the government agents threw around the affair, still persisted and it could not be learned whether either woman will make any claim to the $15,000 rewards that hang over the public enemy's head.

Captain Timothy O'Neil of the East Chicago police, who with Sergeant Martin Zarkovich was among the Indiana officers at the death scene, denied emphatically that Mrs. Sage had anything to do with the Dillinger trap, adding that an underworld character had seen Dillinger and had given the information to Zarkovich. He said:

"All this talk about a woman in a red dress tipping us off to Dillinger's whereabouts is untrue."

Mrs. Keefe, also known by her maiden name of Polly Hamilton, kept company with Dillinger. Mrs. Sage said, but the hunted outlaw would not let Mrs. Keefe know his telephone number on the pretext he was a married man.

PLAYED CARDS

The "girl in red" told Captain Stege that Dillinger came to her home last Sunday evening, when he played cards with Mrs. Keefe, whose picture, the police say, they showed, was in Dillinger's wallet. Captain Stege asked her:

"After you had your dinner Sunday night, who suggested that you go to the theater?" She answered:

"Dillinger did."

"He suggested the theater?" asked Stege.

"Yes. He never said anything until we got to the door. I wanted to go to the Uptown, another theater, to see 'Little Miss Marker' and he said he wanted to go around the corner. That is about a block from my house, the Biograph, and then we walked to the show.

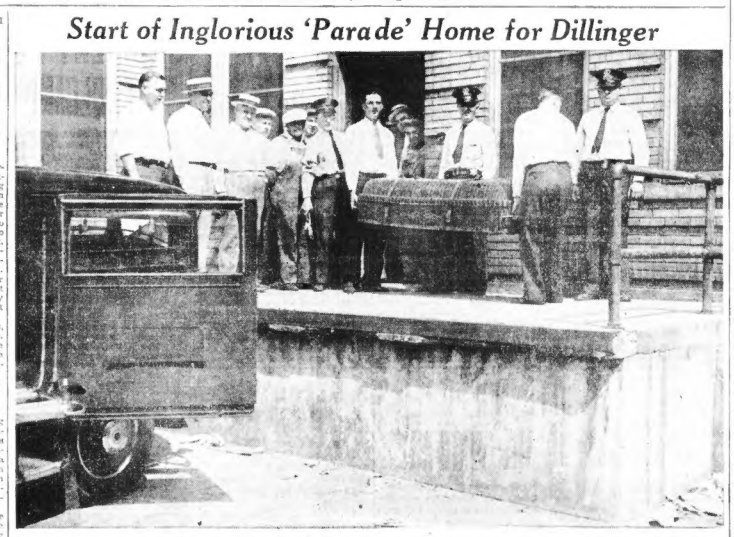
"I guess Miss Hamilton was in the middle and Dillinger was on the outside. In the theater, I found a seat in the middle. They got a seat right down front. Way in front. Before the show was over, I saw them rooming up the aisle and they called me and said, 'Come on,' and I got up and walked out. We walked out of the theater and went southeast toward my house. When we reached the National tea store, a big man pushed me or pulled me and stepped on my foot and I looked around and said 'Say,' and he had a gun. I heard a shot in front of me and I looked and saw Dillinger on the ground and I stood there and looked. I did not know what had happened. Polly pulled me by the hand. She said 'Jimmy got shot,' and gave me one pull. There was a big man with a gun and he said, 'Just a minute,' and he left us and we walked west.

"TAKE ELEVATD"

One of the officers said, 'Just a minute, just a minute,' and he looked over the crowd and she started to pull me and we walked west on Lincoln avenue, south on Sheffield to Fullerton and when we reached the elevated she said, 'Let's take the elevated,' and I said 'where?' and she said 'Anyplace.' We got on the elevated and got off at Belmont, and I said I was going home and she said 'Why go home' and I said I wanted to find out what had happened. I did not know what was happening. Then we walked on Belmont to Clark and took a Clark to Halsted and took Halsted and went home to my house. She was just shaky and she wanted to get out of the car. She had a skirt and slipped that on. I wanted to go to the corner and she did not want to go, she was all nervous. I changed my clothes and went to the corner and every one was yelling that Dillinger was killed."

"I did not know what to think, Dillinger. Then I got scared. Then I went home. She went some place. She did not go home, he went to meet that girl that worked with her, Maxine Dunn. Polly called me from some place on Wilson avenue. She was with Maxine. That was the same night. I don't know how long after the shooting. One hour, two hours, it seemed like a year.

Start of Inglorious 'Parade' Home for Dillinger



As an anti-climax to his spectacular existence by the gun, the clay of John Dillinger, "ace" bandit who was betrayed to death by a woman, was started on an inglorious parade back to the family farm from Chicago. Over 206 miles of scorching streets, under a killing sun that sent the mercury to 110 degrees, the seedy undertaker's wagon brought all that remained of the killer home for burial. His father and brother, lone mourners, kept a silent vigil all along the route. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

ONLY SIMPLE BURIAL

By Associated Press

Maywood Ind., July 25—"Wooden gun" John Dillinger lay in death today in the home where he was an obscure country boy before he "went bad" as the nation's most-hunted criminal.

John Dillinger Sr. elderly and respected farmer, brought his notorious son's body back home yesterday from Chicago where the outlaw's career was ended by bullets of federal agents Sunday night.

A plastic surgeon worked on the body to erase the bullet marks.

After a family conference last night, the father sent to newspapers an announcement that the funeral would be at 10 a. m. tomorrow at the home here of Mrs. Audrey Hancock, John's sister, who cared for him after his mother, Mrs. Mollie Dillinger, died.

Awaiting the body is a grave in Crown Hill cemetery at Indianapolis, next to that of Dillinger's mother, and not far from where many of Indiana's notables in letters and politics have found a last resting place. Also buried there are President Benjamin Harrison, vice-president Thomas R. Marshall, James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet; Kin Hubbard, creator of "Abe Martin," and others.

To insure privacy, officials of the cemetery announced only members of the Dillinger family and those having a part in their burial ceremony would be permitted inside the gates.

Fifty Indianapolis policemen were detailed to the cemetery, and fifteen others guarded the Hancock home. Officers blocked off the road in front of the home where the body rested.

The Rev. Charles M. Fillmore, retired Disciples of Christ minister, who officiated at the elder Dillinger's marriage to his second wife and later preached her funeral sermon, will conduct the services here.

By Universal Service

Indianapolis, Ind., July 25—The funeral of John Dillinger, in the words of the Rev. John Fillmore, retired Christian Church minister, will be "short, simple and sympathetic."

The preacher said he would read will give this prayer:

"In the midst of the troubles and sorrows of this life we know we have a Heavenly Father who is king and sympathetic, and who is all sufficient and deals with us not only righteously but with mercy and grace. He invited us to cast all cares upon Him, and He has shown in His life and character the teachings of His son, Jesus Christ, our Saviour, that He knows how to bear our burdens, and to assuage our grief."

MILK PROBE TO AID FARMER, U. S. PLAN

With the federal government's investigation of the New England milk trade already under way in Connecticut and scheduled to start here early in August, Washington today explained that the purpose of the probe was to suggest means by which the return to the farmer might be increased, without adding to the price burden on the ultimate consumer.

The chief difficulty in the way of a satisfactory solution of the milk problem in the northeastern part of the country, it was pointed out, is the inability of the various state milk control authorities to agree on a single regional plan that would cover New England, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

SITUATION MUDDLED

As a result of conflicting standards, in a region where there is much interstate shipment of milk, the situation is a muddled one. Federal authorities, however, indicated that if the various states really want to settle the problem, the first move is up to them. Washington is not eager to go ahead with a regional plan unless there is agreement among the states themselves. Its aid, however, will be quickly available if it is asked.

Charles R. Mersun, Massachusetts state milk enforcement officer, said today that the federal investigating committee, headed by Prof. Paul D. Converse, University of Illinois marketing authority, probably will establish headquarters in Boston early in August.

Mersun said:

"These investigators can be likened to the Wiskersham Committee, which investigated the Prohibition situation. It is doubtful whether the committee will make complaints against violators. Its duty is to make a survey of the field and report to Washington."

CALLED MISTAKE

One member of the state milk board said that he believed it was a mistake forrf tfhef committee to start its work in New England when it is a well-known fafct that outrageous racketeering and gangsterism marks the industry in New York and Chicago."

Congress launched the probe, when it discovered a monopoly in the District of Columbia and that elsewhere large dairies are reaping big profits, while the farmers took a loss.

In Pennsylvania, where the substantial "Pennsylvania Dutch" once presided over families of ten, twenty or more children, the birth rate has fallen to 16 per 1000 of population, lowest on record.

Knowledge of birth control, plus foolish laws that keep out the kind of emigrants that created the United States, make a combination not very promising.

Chicago supplies a photograph of the dead bandit, Dillinger, lying on his back, blood stains from various bullets showing on his shirt.

Sitting above him, looking down, with satisfaction and triumph, you observe a detective and wonder how that detective's expression would change if Dillinger suddenly came to life. The picture reminds you of the frequent photographs of small Englishmen, each with one foot on the body of a big dead tiger. What a difference if the jovial hunter had met the tiger face to face in the jungle instead of shooting him from the back of an elephant.

In Chicago, with a temperature of 100, cattle pens in the stock yards are crowded and a strike of 750 stock handlers compels the animals to go without food or water. Many cattle were shot to end their suffering. If they could write a description of the "New Era" it would have exclamation points scattered through it.

Polly Hamilton came into "fame" when she became known as the "girl in the watch." Dillinger had a picture of her in his watch when he was killed.

OPAL LANE

Opal Lane crossed Dillinger's path out in Tucson, Arizona, and when the bad man was arrested out there, Opal was taken with him.

Monkey Dies, But Cure for Paralysis Nears

By DOROTHY ROE,
Universal Service Staff
Correspondent

New York, July 25—Three doctors and a benign-faced priest bend intently over a small brown monkey in the rambling laboratory of the New York University-Bellevue Hospital medical school.

The monkey gasps, and a white haired doctor speaks in an eager whisper:

"Please, little monkey, do not die. I will promise you something very nice if you only will not die."

A young doctor speaks quickly: "I think he's coming around. No—no more adrenalin."

MONKEY BUNDLED UP

The monkey is bundled in a blanket and carried to another room. The young doctor turns to his test tubes. He is Dr. Maurice Brodie, assistant professor of bacteriology at the research laboratory, whose experiments with infantile paralysis vaccine have aroused the interest of the world. He says:

"Yes, that monkey has infantile paralysis. They are experimenting with a possible cure by artificial fever."

For five years, since he was a student at McGill university in Montreal, Dr. Brodie has been working patiently over the vaccine which he hopes will provide immunization to the dread childhood disease of infantile paralysis.

In a few weeks now he will know if his dream is to come true.

For the first time, human beings have been inoculated with the virus, then vaccinated, and when the tests upon their blood are complete, the world will know if infantile paralysis may be stamped out as smallpox was in the last generation.

Dr. Brodie, who was the first to be inoculated with the virus, was indignant at the report that the vaccine is to be tried out on orphaned children. He says:

"We haven't the faintest idea of experimenting with children, orphans or otherwise, until the research is complete.

WAITING FOR RESULTS

"When the time comes to inoculate children, we will treat only those whose parents have requested the board of health for the privilege. Already there is a waiting list.

"That is why we tried it out on ourselves first. Now we are waiting to see what the results of the present experiments will be."

He was asked:

"If the present tests show that you have been immunized, will that mean that the vaccine will be put into general use—that a preventative for infantile paralysis has been found?"

The young doctor smiled, and said:

"Yes, I suppose—I hope—it will. Already we have proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that monkeys can be immunized. If it works for humans—yes, it will be put in general use.

"Then we will find something else to work on."

The white haired doctor came in, and there were tears in his eyes as he said:

"The little monkey—he is dead. And I had so hoped—ah, well, we will try it another way next time."

HERMAN C. FALL KILLS SELF

Herman Christy Fall, 40, son of former Mayor George Howard Fall of Malden and brother of Judge Emma Fall Schofield, killed himself today at the home of his father at 15 Harden road, Malden.

A wounded war veteran who had been a patient in government hospitals for years, Fall sent a bullet from an army pistol crashing through his brain.

The pistol was the property of his brother, former Representative Howard Fall, who was the only other person in the house, occupying a bedroom adjoining that where the tragedy occured.

ATTEMPT SUNDAY FAILED

Judge Schofield, one of two women on the Massachusetts bench, is in Switzerland. There is another sister, Dorothea. The Fall family has been one of the most prominent in Malden for many years.

Fall is believed to have attempted suicide last Sunday in Quincy, where he was pulled from in front of a trolley car.

He shot himself about 4 o'clock this morning and died at 5:25. Dr. Carroll C. Burpee and Associated Medical Examiner Fritz W. Gay were in attendance.

8 YEARS IN HOSPITAL

He was graduated from Malden high school, Dartmouth College and the Massachusetts Osteopathic College.

He was invalided home from war service in France and spent six years in veterans' hospitals at West Roxbury and Bedford.

Two years ago he went to the Fall farm at Epping, N. H., in an attempt to regain his health and remained there until two weeks ago when he went to Malden for a visit. He was unmarried.

HICKMAN FREED IN KILLING

By Universal Service

San Francisco, July 25—Millard Hickman, port engineer, did not murder Louise Jeppesen, Ogden, Utah, socialite, on the morning of May 13, last, a jury in Judge Lile T. Jacks' court decided after two hours deliberation.

Hickman appeared dazed by the verdict.

Edward McKenzie, of defense counsel, declared their satisfaction with the verdict. Peter Mullins, who had handled the case for the prosecution, declared:

"This was a miscarriage of justice."

Lost Connecticut Baby Found in Swamp

By International News Service

Cromwell, Conn., July 25—Baby Claire Benson, 21-month-old object of an all night search by hundreds of police and citizens, was found bruised and scratched by brambles in a swamp not more than a mile from her home by a party of searchers today.

The child was pronounced none the worse for her experience by Dr. Walter Nelson, who examined her. Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Benson, the child's parents, were overcome with joy at her safe return.

Baby Claire knew her mother well here picking yesterday afternoon and was believed to have set out from the Benson farm home in search of the mother. Her blue and white sunsuit was found in a wagon rack across a hay field, one-half mile from her home.

Bloodhounds, brought by state police, were set on her trail last night but

Early today, a group of neighbors resumed the search that others had kept up throughout the night and were rewarded by finding the infant in a dense thicket in swampy land.

WORD OF BYRD IS AWAITED

Little America, Antarctica, July 25—Word was anxiously awaited today from a tractor party of five struggling back to the main base here and from Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, commander of the Antarctic expedition who is isolated in his advance base.

The tractor group, which abandoned an attempt to reach Admiral Byrd's observation post because of the extreme weather, presumably was only a few miles from headquarters.

It was at a camp 28 miles from Little America when a halt was taken for rest Monday night.

Dangerous crevasses lie between the camp and the base here and the five were expected to proceed with extreme caution. Nearly all signals marking trails have been obliterated by snow.

No word has been heard from Admiral Byrd since last Friday, when he was forced to use a hand-cranked radio set to communicate with headquarters. His main radio set was out of commission at the time.

The Antarctic winter has about a month to run.

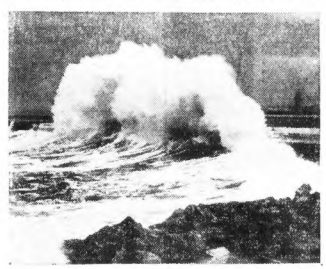
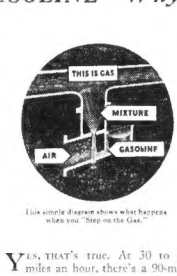
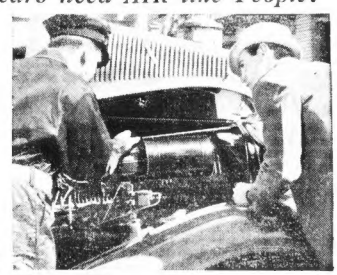
A HURRICANE under your Hood!
Learn this Truth about GASOLINE—Why cars need AIR like People!



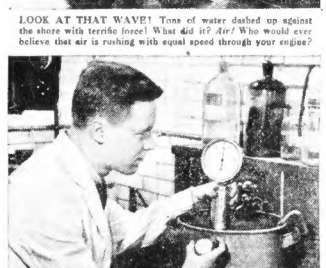
LOOK AT THAT WAVE! Tons of water dashed up against the shore with terrific force! What did it? Air! Who would ever believe that air is rushing with equal speed through your engine?



This simple diagram shows what happens when you "Step on the Gas."



LIFT THE HOOD—and study your engine a minute. See that big round tube? That's the AIR cleaner—the filter through which are drawn thousands of gallons of fresh air that helps to run your car.



THE VAPOR PRESSURE TEST guards against "vapor-lock." Socony-Vacuum engineers are constantly making such tests, finding out just how Socony Mobilgas behaves with different kinds of air.

YES, THAT'S true. At 30 to 40 miles an hour, there's a 90-mile gale rushing through your engine.

The POWER that drives your car isn't gasoline; it's GAS made from a mixture of gasoline and AIR.

But the weather is constantly changing. It's cool in the morning, hot at noon. So gasoline must mix with all kinds of AIR.

Socony-Vacuum engineers readjust Socony Mobilgas so that it mixes better with any kind of air.

Sudden weather changes no longer steal power nor slow up starting. Car performance stays uniform—not variable with the weather.

'Most people say that dependable, uniform car performance is what they want from gasoline. Why not get it with the kind that mixes better with air?

IT'S A GRAND AND GLORIOUS feeling when you can count on top-notch performance from your car day in and day out. That's exactly what Climatic Control does. It gives uniform power.

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT H. MORSE of The Moorings, at Manchester-by-the-Sea, are giving a Gay Nineties dinner and dance on Friday evening . . . it will be one of the largest and most colorful parties of the summer social season on the North Shore which has been very gay the past few weeks . . .

More than a hundred guests from surrounding towns and cities, and many from out of the state, will attend and trunks and attics will be ransacked for original and amusing costumes . . . only in New England could some of the effects be created which are seen from time to time at Victorian parties . . .

LILLA DRAPER

Mrs. Morse will be assisted as hostess by her daughter, Mrs. Charles Roslyn Carney, who with her small daughter is summering at The Moorings, one of the show places of West Manchester. Mrs. Archer D. Friend of Beverly Cove, sister of Mrs. Morse's, will entertain many visiting friends over the week-end . . .

On Friday evening, the guests attired in the frills, feathers and furbelows of that period when women never were mistaken for anything else, will assemble in the Morse gardens for hors d'oeuvres and will look up in amazement to see Mr. and Mrs. Morse drive across the broad lawns in a splendid coach and four to greet their costumed guests. A buffet supper in the house will follow with dancing to Ruby Newman's Orchestra . . .

* * *

Many Guests From Mid-West Centers

AMONG THE INVITED GUESTS are Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Stranahan, brother and sister-in-law of Mrs. Morse, of Toledo, Ohio, who will come up from Westport, Ct., for the occasion. Mr. Frank Duane Stranahan will attend from Perrysburg, Ohio. Mrs. Frank Stranahan who is well-known to the summer colony on the Shore will not be at home for the party . . . she is traveling on the North Cape Cruise. The Duane Stranahans will fly from Ohio to the North Shore.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Suydam of Toledo, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Taylor of Zanesville, Ohio, formerly of Bass Rocks, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Canady of Toledo, Mr. Louis Wasey of New York, and the Bahamas where he is owner of Carkay Island, will arrive on his yacht, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hodgkins and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Clark, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Dunne of Beverly, and many other guests from along the shores will be represented among the guests.

* * *

The Manchester Yacht Club will hold a dance on August 4 under the direction of Mrs. Henry Pratt McKean of Beverly Farms and Mrs. William S. Kebger of Manchester. On September 15 there will be a junior dance at which the younger group may disport themselves.

JOSEF VON STERNBERG TO DIRECT MARLENE DIETRICH IN "LORELEI," BY DAVID HERTZ

Verree Teasdale Given Leading Role in "The Fire Bird"; Will Delay Wedding

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, July 25—Rumors of arguments and verbal battles between Marlene Dietrich and her director, Josef Von Sternberg, are quieted, temporarily at least, with the word that he will direct her in "Lorelei." All stories under discussion have been shelved to make way for this original story by David Hertz.

Von Sternberg, who has always had complete say so over the Dietrich pictures, will discuss "Lorelei" with one John Dos Passos. The bearer of this picturesque name belongs to the New York intelligentsia. He is a writer of great ability and he will work on "Lorelei" to be sure the Dietrich gets a chance to really act.

The elaborate and expensive trousseau Verree Teasdale is buying in New York for her marriage to Adolphe Menjou will have to wait for an additional month or six weeks. Miss Teasdale has been paged by Warner Brothers to play the feminine lead in "The Fire Bird," by Lajos Zilahy, and produced on the stage by Gilbert Miller. Featured along with Adolphe Menjou's fiancee is Ricardo Cortez. William Dieterle is the director. The Menjou-Teasdale marriage was set for August 14 with a long honeymoon, but since this role is the chance Miss Teasdale has been waiting for, she will make the picture before she becomes Mrs. Menjou.

Gloria Swanson, beaming with happiness, told me that her three children had arrived from Europe a few days ago. They sailed under the name of Simonson, the name of Bridget Michaels Farmer's nurse. While Michael Farmer was sailing around the world on a pleasure cruise, Gloria quietly had the two-year-old baby bundled up and brought here along with Gloria, Jr. and Joseph. Gloria, a blonde edition of her mother, promises to become a real beauty. She is slender, tall for her age and beautifully brought up. The three youngsters were wild with joy at seeing their mother and at coming to Hollywood.

A Line or Two

June Brewster is desperately ill after a bad session with two wisdom teeth. Her jawbone was splintered when her teeth were extracted. Joan Crawford's newest interest outside of Franchot Tone seems to be George Brent. Ruth Chatterton's former husband. She drove way across town to see his preview of "Housewife" and admitted to one of her friends that she wanted him for her next leading man. Maybe her interest is purely professional. She is one of Ruth Chatterton's closest friends. George Raft and his bodyguard, Mack Grey, have gone grand and taken a penthouse atop the Royale apartments. They have engaged a cook, who has practically nothing to do since George dines with Virginia Pine at Hollywood restaurants and Mack feeds pretty Lucille Ball. Lee Tracy's probation is ended. Paramount exercised its option today and signed him to a long-term contract and he was given the lead in "The Lemon Drop Kid."

What a lot of festivities over the week-end. They started with MRS. M. C. LEVEE'S beach luncheon and ended with the ROBERT KANES' cocktail party; ERNST LUBITSCH'S housewarming with just everybody in the world congratulating Ernst on his grand new house; HOWARD GRIEVE and JETTA GOUDAL were talking bows on the furnishings, which are the last word; WINFIELD SHEEHAN gave a birthday party the same night for KITTY GALLIAN; HARRY RICHMAN dashing in from Santa Barbara and playing the accompaniment for HELEN MORGAN'S songs; ALICE FAYE, talking for hours to EDMUND LOWE, confessed to carrying the torch for RUDY VALLEE; an Hawaiian orchestra brought forth some astonishing Hula dancers; MRS. SKEETS GALLAGHER'S dance won the prize; JACKIE COOGAN escorting DAL PINO to the Miramar to dance; ROBERT ARMSTRONG and ERNEST WOOD doing New Yorking seeing their friends at the Warwick Hotel. Clever Pair Starred in New Film

Warner Baxter and Madge Evans have the leading roles in "Grand Canary" which opened at the RKO Keith Memorial today. The scene of the plot is laid in the Canary Islands.

Choice Films on Theaters' New Bills

Beginning today with a new program at the Keith Memorial, Boston first-run film houses offer a variety of entertainment for the coming week.

Warner Baxter is starred in "Grand Canary," film version of one of the year's most popular best-seller novels, which is the feature film at the Keith Memorial. The story is the love drama of a doctor who finds himself fighting single-handed a devastating epidemic of yellow fever on the Spanish isle, with Madge Evans, the girl he loves, a victim of the plague. Marjorie Rambeau and Zita Johann are in the cast.

The double feature program at the Keith Boston, opening tomorrow, has "Bachelor Bait," a riotous romantic comedy with Stuart Erwin, Pert Kelton, Rochelle Hudson and Skeets Gallagher in the cast, to share honors with Jack Holt's latest starring film, "Black Moon," a story of a New Yorker's adventures in Haiti, taken from the popular Cosmopolitan story.

* * *

"The Notorious Sophie Lang," Paramount's fast moving romance of a beautiful girl-crook, is the film fare at the Metropolitan, beginning Friday, sharing honors with "Jokers Wild," an elaborate musical revue featuring the world renowned midget team of Olive and George, Buster Shaver, and a splendid company in a novel stage presentation. Gertrude Michael has the title role in "The Notorious Sophie Lang," which has been adapted for the screen from stories by Frederick Irving Anderson. Paul Cavanagh, Alison Skipworth, Leon Errol and Arthur Byron are in the cast.

The Paramount and Fenway offer an interesting double feature bill opening tomorrow with "The Personality Kid," tale of a prize fighter and his love affairs, with Pat O'Brien, Glenda Farrell and Claire Todd in the cast. On the same program is "Elmer and Elsie," featuring George Bancroft, Frances Fuller, Roscoe Karns and George Barbier.

On Friday one of the most famous classics of literature comes to the screen at Loew's State, in Monogram Pictures' production of Charlotte Bronte's masterpiece, "Jane Eyre." Lovely Virginia Bruce, in her first screen appearance since her marriage to John Gilbert, has the role of the little English orphan, with Colin Clive appearing as Mr. Rochester. The rest of the foreign films, and one which has been heralded as the finest of the European studios, opene at the Fine Arts tomorrow. "Those Happy Days in Aranjuez" brings Brigitte Helm for the first time before American film audiences in a thrilling story of an international jewel robbery.

Her American Screen Debut

Art Exhibition at Stockbridge

The third of the summer art exhibitions is now on display at the Berkshire Playhouse at Stockbridge, where Olive Curtis Beaver is presenting block prints, water colors and pencil drawings by Ernest Watson and Eva Auld Watson.

Mr. Watson's prints have been on display in many galleries and museums throughout the United States and have won high praise for their depth and beauty of coloring. Many of his subjects are taken from farm life and landscaping of the Berkshires. His most recent exhibits have been at the Smithsonian National Museum at Washington and at the Art Institute in Chicago.

Addison Is New Loew's Chief

Announcement has been made by the Loew Theaters in Boston of the recent appointment by Loew headquarters in New York of H. M. Addison as divisional manager with offices in Boston. He will take up his duties within the next few days.

Addison comes to Boston from a similar post in Cleveland, and has served the Loew organization in various positions in Rochester, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Cleveland. He is widely known in theatrical circles, and has served as president of the Variety Club. During his association as district manager in Ohio, he has been prominently identified with civic projects and radio in Cleveland, and has served as chairman of theater groups and arbitration boards for chain theater groups in the Middle West.

His new territory, with Boston as the focal point, will include Providence, Toronto, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, London, Ont., and Montreal.

Abbey Group in New Plays

Preparations for a new series of productions by the Abbey Players for the coming season have already been made, with an early fall opening of the famous Dublin group scheduled for Boston.

E. A. Wickes, of the firm of Alker and Wickes, has sailed for Dublin, where new plays will be put into production with a view to an early American tour during the coming season.

Delay Shubert Premiere

Announcement has been made that the world premiere of "Life Begins at 8:40," the John Murray Anderson revue featuring Bert Lahr, Ray Bolger, Luella Gear and Frances Williams, coming to the Shubert, has been deferred until Thursday evening, August 2.

The postponement is due to the physical impossibility of completing work on the new type of movable stage which will be used in the production. It is expected that all stage work will be completed on next Tuesday, with the following two days devoted to final rehearsals.

Mother, 50, Sails in Crew of Sloop

New London, Ct., July 25—The 35-foot sloop Enterprise, owned by Peter Barber of New York, and carrying along his 50-year-old mother as a member of the crew, sailed from here for adventure on the high seas.

Barber said he was bound for Morocco, a port previously visited by the Enterprise, but it was his mother's first voyage on a trip of this sort. The sloop is expected to return to New York in December.

SHOULD HUSBANDS DICTATE WHAT CLOTHES THEIR WIVES SHOULD WEAR?

Given in Marriage

By Adele Garrison

Mother Graham's fault finding and baiting of Katie could have but one result—and the worst happens!

CHAPTER 97

AS KATIE'S high-pitched scream followed the crash of crockery from the kitchen, I paid a mental tribute to the self-control and social poise of the group gathered in the living room. All of them were sufficiently familiar with Katie's temperament to know that broken dishes would be followed by screams, and that, in all probability, no serious accident had occurred.

The conversation did not flag for a single instant, and while there was more or less humorous comprehension of the emergency in the faces of Dicky, Harry and Lillian, there was no change of expression upon Philip Veritzen's face, nor upon those of Mary and Noel, who were standing with him before Mother Graham's arm chair.

MOTHER GRAHAM GUILTY

I was sure of one thing, however. There was something beside social poise in Mother Graham's apparent indifference. I had caught her one quick furtive glance toward me when that scream rang out. It was exactly like that of a small boy after stealing jam, when suddenly confronted with the empty jar. The quick averting of her eyes which followed, and her intense absorption in what Mr. Veritzen was saying only confirmed me in the opinion that she was responsible for whatever had happened in the kitchen.

"The blessed old ostrich!" Lillian murmured. "She probably thinks she can get away with an apperance of innocence, when it's dollars to doughnuts she's bedeviled poor Katie into practical insanity. Do you want me to come along?" as I rose from my chair.

"Not just yet, thank you," I murmured. "I'll just slip out the side door here. Cover my retreat for me, and if I'm not back soon, come and find out where the body is buried."

MADGE TO THE RESCUE

"I'll do that little thing," she said, and unhurriedly I made my way out of the room. Purposely I had delayed going until I was sure no one was noticing my exit.

The sight which confronted me in the kitchen was not calculated to soothe the nerves of a chatelaine about to preside over a dinner which she wished to go off smoothly.

Katie stood in the middle of the room, her hands clawing the air, while Jim stolidly held one good arm around her neck, his hand firmly covering her lips.

"If you'll promise not to scream again, I'll let you go," he was saying patiently, as I came into the room.

QUIETING KATIE

I advanced straight to them, took the girl's twisting hands in mine and looked compellingly into her eyes.

"I'll take care of her now, Jim," I said quietly. "I'm sure she won't make me any more trouble by screaming."

With a sigh of relief, Jim took his hand away.

"I'll clear up this mess," he said, indicating a welter of tomato juice cocktails, caviar sandwiches and broken glass—my best rock crystal ones—upon the floor.

Katie slumped heavily against me and for a second I feared she had fainted; but her hands were still twisting frantically in mine, and she was whispering between broken sobs.

"I won't scream," she promised penitently. "But oh! dose pretty glasses. Dot old vomans she coom in, snooping round, finding fault mit eferytings, und ven she vent I got to crying so I couldn't see tings, und den I drop tray. I could shoost keel!"

"Hush!" I said sternly, although my heart was not in the reproof. My little maid evidently had been sorely tried. "You mustn't talk like that. Besides, we have a lot of work to do. We must get all this ready again to take in the living room.

"SHOOST VUN ANGEL!"

"Give me an apron and Jim and I will get to work again. Mrs. Underwood will be out, too, in two or three minutes. Now you go upstairs and bathe your eyes, and calm down, so you will look all right when you are serving dinner."

"You shoost vun angel," Katie said, covering my hands with kisses, a demonstration which I dislike intensely, but which I dared not rebuff in the present state of my little maid's nerves.

"How many vimmens act like dot ven deir pretty tings all smashed?" she went on rhetorically. But I stopped her in full flight.

"If you had broken them because of carelessness, Katie, I should be very angry," I said. "But you have been with me many years, and you have an unbroken record of care for my things and devotion to me. Of course I am sorry about them, but we cannot bring them back by grieving over them. We have something much more important apron quickly."
on hand. Come! Give me that

There was need for haste. I knew, as the aroma of the baking chicken pie came to my nostrils. I especially wished this dinner to be a success, both because of Phillip Veritzen and because of my mother-in-law's strictures upon Katie. But everything depended upon Katie's getting back her equilibrium.

Some Pay and Pay, Saying Nothing

By Sheilah Graham

"THE AVERAGE husband doesn't criticize his wife's clothes enough," says a well known author. No, all the poor sap usually does is to make an allowance for them.

And what's wrong with that? says Little Tilly Losch, the Viennese dancer. Heaven created husband so that nice ladies could get nice clothes in a nice way, but it didn't mean them—says Tilly—to dictate what those nice clothes should be. That must be left to the discretion of the aforementioned nice ladies.

According to Tilly, her determination to wear clothes and hats of her own choice was the real reason her youthful husband, millionaire Edward Jones, brought a suit of divorce against her—and not as the British court ruled, misconduct with Prince Serge Obolensky.

An interesting question is raised. Has a husband the right to dictate to his wife what clothes she shall wear? He pays for them. Does that give him the right to choose them?

* * *

I asked several wives how they felt on the subject. With no exceptions they all laughed and said, "What! Let my husband tell me what to wear? Just let him try, that's all."

I tried their husbands. Some were wistful, some were indifferent, but all accepted the fact that their advice on feminine frills and furbelows was about as welcome as the rent collector.

I tried to stir one sluggish husband to anger. His wife's reputation as a dresser is in the Grade A Class. His capacity as an earner is the Grade nearest the end of the alphabet.

"If you can't dictate to your wife what dresses she should wear, why don't you do some dictating on the quantity? Why don't you tell her to economize?" I asked him. His answer surprised me.

"I have spoken to her about economy," he told me.

"Any luck?" I demanded.

"Yes," he replied. "I've got to cut down on my tobacco and liquor."

This dress dictation seems to be a very one-sided business. The average husband buys his wife's clothes and, in most cases, is afraid to tell her what to wear.

The average wife doesn't pay for her husband's clothes, but she very seldom hesitates to tell him when his hat is a scream, the color of his tie a pain or the cut of his suit a nightmare.

And, adding stupidity to silliness, the lads who pay nearly always return a "yes, dear, you are right," in reply to wifely criticism of their sartorial splendor.

For Cocktails or Dinner

PATTERN 9993

This is a frock in which to go places of a summer afternoon or evening—nice places, where there are breezes, and music and cool things to eat and drink. Whether you make it of a printed or plain sheer fabric it will be right in key with the occasion if you wear with it a big hat and pretty shoes. Its lines are so flattering and that cape collar is so becoming that you can be sure of looking your best.

Pattern 9993 may be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Send your order to Boston American Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th street, New York, N. Y.

Gingham for Town and Country

WE KNOW how much at home this two-piece plaid gingham collared with white pique can be in the country and in a busy office, because we've seen it in both places, looking cheerful, smart and efficient over both a rose bed and a typewriter. It was cunning and snappy with the young matron's tossed hair and shining eyes. Starched and spandy fresh, it made a crisp little aura around its pretty wearer in a wilting hot office. And you should have heard her comments on what such a frock, that costs in the region of two dollars, can do for a vacation budget! If you would like to know where you may find this tub frock in Boston, phone Annice Brink, Liberty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Miss Janet Marston, of Newton, models.

Pandora Tells You

DEAR PANDORA:

I'm terribly concerned over the future. I wonder if my husband will ever amount to anything again. He has always been very successful — the glib, forceful type. Always, he has been able to talk himself into practically any job he wanted. But not lately, not for the past four months, to be exact.

Just about five months ago, he completed a certain assignment of work he contracted to do. He knew the day when he would be through with the work, which, incidentally, he performed to the queen's taste in the opinion of those concerned. However, it WAS a shock to both of us when he finally had "no place to go" of mornings. Alternately, he would be full of plans and then desperately discouraged. I've tried to conceal the alarm I was experiencing but I guess he did and does suspect. This, naturally, has created a strained situation.

He stops in the middle of explaining some new project he has in mind and, with some lame excuse, goes into another room or out of the house. Of course, I know the actual difficulty is that he has become self-conscious and uncertain with me. I suppose I should feel compunction about this, but, really, Pandora, I've become so tired of thinking about other people that I'm worrying about myself for a change. And I'm genuinely worried over our financial future. Do you think I should walk out of all this while I'm still rather young and attractive? I do love my husband. MILLICENT.

Keene, N. H.

DEAR MILLICENT:

Why not give the man a chance? Don't you realize that this old world would have gone "boom" following the lamentable "Black Friday" fiasco if everybody was ready to give up as easily as you are? You don't mention any present economic stress—just concern over financial bridges you may never have to cross. Where is your intestinal fortitude? What help are you being to a man who desperately needs all the encouragement and cheer of which a loving, loyal wife is capable. You "rogust" me, you potential walker-outer! PANDORA.

The "Makings" of Summer Parties

By Martha Lee

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast over Station WAAB

SUMMER TIME means parties, but do not be alarmed, for these are generally impromptu gatherings of neighbors and friends on porch or veranda, in the cool of the evening. In fact, it is one of the most pleasant features of the summer time. With a plate of crisp cookies and a long cool fruit drink, the problem of hospitality lies very lightly on the hostess' shoulders.

A little preparation simplifies the making of refreshments. Always have on hand a few bottles of fruit syrups—strawberry, raspberry, lime, mint or chocolate. Also a supply of ginger ale, lemon beverages, grape juice, carbonated water, etc., and for sweetening a jar of simple syrup made by boiling equal parts of sugar and water. Canned fruit juices are a boon at all times. Have some small jars of cherries and a little patch of mint. The refrigerator should always yield lemons, oranges and limes, as well as ice and milk.

Cookies are liable to lose their crispness in the summer time. The ice box type of cookie is a happy solution to that problem, and incidentally, almost any cookie can be the ice box type. With the cookie dough mixed and stored in the refrigerator, it is only the work of a moment to slice or measure it off and pop the cookie into the oven. In this way you have the benefit of fresh baked cookies without the work of mixing a fresh batch of dough for each baking.

We have prepared a lesson sheet on frosty drinks and dainty accompaniments which we'll be glad to send on request.

FRUIT PUNCH

1 cup rasberry syrup
½ cup lime juice
½ cup lemon juice
1 pt. cold English tea
½ cup fresh pineapple, cut in thin strips
½ cup diced orange
½ cup sliced strawberries
2 qt. gingerale

Combine the syrup, fruit juices, tea and the fresh fruits, carefully cut as directed into neat pieces. Mix thoroughly and chill. When ready to serve, add the ice cold ginger ale. Serve in tall glasses with ice cubes. This makes approximately 10 cups.

PECAN BUTTERSCOTCH COOKIES

2½ cups brown sugar
¾ cup butter
¼ teaspoon salt
3 to 3½ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
3 eggs
1 cup pecans, cut in pieces

Cream the butter. Add sugar and salt. Add eggs and flour, which has been sifted with the baking powder and the pecans. Drop by spoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet. Flatten with a spatula which has been dipped in water. Bake for 8 to 10 minutes, at 375 deg. F.

ALWAYS I keep on advocating the use of soap and water to keep the skin clean and fresh looking, but I have never taken the time to tell you which of the numerous soaps are particularly beneficial.

Of the three types of skin, the oily skin is the most difficult to keep looking cool and clear during the summer weather. Such a skin requires numerous washings with the proper soap and warm water, at least three a day, to prevent infection of the skin pores or mild inflammation which cause pimples.

* * *

I can give you the name of a soap that is prepared from the milk of lettuce leaves. This soap actually cuts oil and goes deep into the pores of the skin and scoops out the oil deposits that lodge there. Frenchwomen have used this soap for years to cleanse oily skins, but although it has been available in this country, few American women are aware of its efficacy.

As an oily skin is the result of over-activity of the sebaceous glands, I cannot too strongly stress the importance of aiding the pores to discharge the excessive oil. If you do not keep the skin pores immaculately clean and free of oil, blemishes are bound to appear.

A good way to prevent pores from being clogged is to use a rich lather of the soap I have mentioned and a flesh brush. At least three times a week (more frequently if your skin can stand it), scrub your face gently. Rinse off the soap thoroughly with warm water and then splash your skin with quantities of cold water—the colder it is the more astringent it is. Some skins may benefit by ice, but be sure to wrap the ice in a piece of linen before treating the skin.

* * *

For those of you who plan to spend the summer by the sea, or to sail the briny deep, let me give you the name of a soap that lathers instantly in salt water. Most soaps, as you know, give little action in sea water, so you will be delighted with the one I have in mind. A box of three cakes is an inexpensive, but very thoughtful gift to send to a friend who is sailing. You can bet such a bon voyage gift will not be duplicated and nothing will be more welcome.

* * *

If you are interested you may learn the names of these soaps and where they may be purchased by phoning Miss Shelby, Liberty 4000. If you prefer writing for this information send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Tweezing of Brows

If a girl must tweeze her brows down to a line the width of a darning cotton, let her follow it with meticulous care. The effect is not alluring when new sprouts appear around the surrounding skin. Hot water applications make hair pulling less painful. Also, there are pain-deadeners to be had at cosmetic counters now.

Cross-Ruff Versus Side Suit

By Josephine Culbertson

In playing a hand at a suit declaration one of the most common problems confronting the Declarer is whether to use a cross-ruff or to establish a side suit. Assuming the final contract is four of a major suit, the cross-ruff is the proper line of play if ten winning tricks seem reasonably assured by it. If ten tricks are not in sight, some alternative line of play, usually involving the establishment of long-card tricks in a side suit, is necessary.

Today's hand, which at first glance seems one which should be played for a simple cross-ruff, is actually one in which the proper play consists of the establishment of a side suit.

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

North: ♠ 8 5 4 ♡ A K J ◇ A J 10 5 4 ♣ A 9
West: ♠ K Q 10 9 ♡ 10 8 ◇ K 8 6 ♣ Q 8 6 5
East: ♠ J 2 ♡ 9 7 6 ◇ Q 7 3 2 ♣ K J 7 4
South: ♠ A 7 6 3 ♡ Q 5 4 3 2 ◇ 9 ♣ 10 3 2

The bidding:

North	South
1 ◇	1 ♡
3 ♡	4 ♡
Pass

There is nothing that can be criticized in the above bidding except that South was perhaps a shade optimistic.

West's opening lead was the spade King, and after Dummy played low, East dropped his Jack and South held up his Ace. West continued with the spade Queen and South won this second trick. South realized that his contract could be fulfilled by giving up a club and ruffing the third club in Dummy if the trumps broke three and two and if the 13th spade could be established.

However, from the play to the first two tricks South knew that the spades would not break and he immediately saw that if he attempted to ruff the 13th spade in Dummy as well as a club, two of Dummy's high trumps would have to be used and either the Nine or the Ten in one of the opponents' hands would be set up for their fourth trick.

South decided therefore that his only hope in fulfilling the contract lay in his ability to set up one or more diamond tricks in Dummy for the necessary discards. Obviously, to set up the diamond suit it must be played immediately and at Trick Two South led the diamond Nine, won with Dummy's Ace and ruffed a low diamond in his own hand. He re-entered the Dummy by the play of a trump and ruffed another diamond with another low heart.

Dummy was again entered with a second round of trumps and another diamond led and ruffed, this time with the Queen. South, of course, had no more trumps left and led a club to the Dummy's Ace. The last trump was now drawn and the good diamond cashed. The opponents were conceded a spade and a club trick at finish, but the contract was fulfilled.

It is easily seen that South could not have fulfilled his contract without setting up a diamond trick and that in order to do this the suit had to be tackled early in the play. It is most important for the Declarer to plan his play at the very start of a hand, and not plunge blindly in, only to wake up after it is too late.

Buttermilk and Meal Masks

Question—I would appreciate greatly your giving me the directions for a home beauty mask. R. G. A., Dorchester.

Buttermilk mixed with enough corn meal to make a paste not stiff enough to run; yeast mixed to a paste with milk or cream; oatmeal with almond meal, rose water and glycerine, or an egg mask. To give this, cleanse face with cream, remove with tissues. Then apply yolk of egg over face and neck and let dry. If there's any egg left, apply it again. Let it dry, then apply the white over the yolk. Let it stay on about half an hour and remove with warm water.

Apply soothing lotion or a little cream. This is very good for the skin as it combines the oily or nourishing qualities of the yolk of an egg with the astringent, tightening qualities of the white. An ideal combination

How to Firm Muscles

Question: In the past year, through following the advice of my doctor, I have lost more than 25 pounds. Although I could well afford this, the sagginess of the skin on my entire body is causing me great distress. Please help me. G. S., Boston.

Answer: It is natural for your skin to be loose on your body after you have reduced so drastically. What you need is a strong astringent which will tighten the skin and strengthen the muscles. Use this every morning, and at night rub in a good muscle oil. There are several fine ones on the market. Then tie up the chin in a bandage wrung from cold water and dipped with the astringent and leave on overnight. Use plenty of cold water on your face and neck every time you wash.

Gloves Are Optional

By Mrs. Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—I am to attend a formal dance given by a college and I want to know if it is necessary for me to wear gloves? I am to wear a blue formal gown and slippers to match. Is it proper?

2—The gentleman who is escorting me is going to send me a corsage. Is it proper for him to do so, or should I get my own? M.

1—Wear your blue formal gown and slippers, and, if you wish, wear gloves . . . but gloves aren't really necessary, especially when the dance is given late in the season.

2—Yes, it is proper and gallant for the young man who is taking you to the dance to send you a corsage. Indeed, this is usually taken for granted.

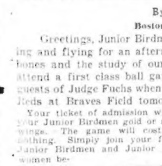
Greetings, Junior Birdmen! Let's drop our model plane building and flying for an afternoon, stop our search for new Funnybones and the study of our air dictionary and take time out to attend a first class ball game. You have been invited to be the guests of Judge Fuchs when the Boston Braves meet the Cincinnati Reds at Braves Field tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon.

Your ticket of admission will be your Junior Birdmen gold or silver wings. The game will cost you nothing. Simply join your fellow Junior Birdmen and Junior Birdwomen before the game time tomorrow afternoon on the Babcock street entrance of the Braves baseball field. Commonwealth avenue cars show your wings to the gateman, walk in and select your seat. And then root with all your strength for the Braves.



Herbert Wise

This is the first time that Junior Birdmen have had a chance to see a free National League baseball game so we expect hundreds of the girl and boy members to turn out on Thursday for this event. Be sure you wear your wings.

If you are not a Junior Birdman and want to see this game, then join this organization immediately. Application may be made by using the blank on this page or at the Babcock street entrance of the baseball park. Every boy, girl and youth, between 10 and 21 years old, is eligible to join this national air-minded organization.

Send in Entries For Joke Contest

Midnight tonight, marks the end of the second week's Funnybone Contest. The judges are going to have quite a time deciding who will be the lucky two to win the new one-dollar bills, and when they get through doing that, they'll take a deep breath and sit back to await the next week's entries.

Next week you stand just as much chance to win a dollar bill as you have the last two. Just gather up all the aviation jokes you can find and write them out clearly, giving your name, age, address and membership number.

Mail them, not to Junior Birdmen, Boston American Wing, 100 Summer street, Boston. That's all there is to it. The judges do the rest. All you have to do is look in the column Saturday for your Funnybone to appear and then watch for the mailman to bring you that dollar bill.

Just see how easy the rules are to follow. Here they are:

1—Any member of the Junior Birdmen is eligible to submit entries for the Funnybone Contest.

2—When submitting entries be sure that you give your name, address, age and membership number on each sheet of paper.

3—Only jokes pertaining to aviation will be accepted.

4—Where the same joke is submitted by more than one member, the member who first sends it in will be credited.

5—A one-dollar bill will be sent to each of the two members whose entries are published each week in the Junior Birdmen Column.

6—Members may submit as many jokes as they wish.

7—All entries for each week must be postmarked not later than Wednesday. No entries will be returned and the decision of the judges will be final.

Well, those rules are just about as easy as you can make them. No wonder we have so many entries. But don't let the large number discourage you. A great many of them are not eligible for one reason or another. Take a chance on winning that award!

Are you adding these jokes that appear as winners to your scrapbook? Remember there's a scrapbook contest coming along for you, and you'll want these jokes as part of it. Some of the members, we hear, are making a special aviation joke book. If you haven't thought of doing that, well there's a new idea for you.

Questions and Answers Box

Lawrence Wolf, age 15, Milton street, Arlington, wants to know what is your age limit. Reply: It is 21 years of age, Lawrence.

Louis Levesque, of 11 fillmore street, Dorchester—We certainly do like the picture you sent in—Thanks! It's not often we get one all nicely framed. Come up and see it on our wall.

Francis Connolly, of 202 Franklin street, Fall River—Insignia no. 1 appeared in the Boston American on June 16. No. 2 on June 21, No. 3 on July 23 and No. 4 on July 9, and marked 1, 2, 3, 4 respectively.

John Tilley, of 40 Greenville street, Boston, would like to send you another pair of wings for you. Will send as a request and not a contest. Thanks, John, but I want those cards from the gals first before joining to get your Eagle emamination questions. We're glad to learn that you are making models—even though they're not flying models. Why not try to make a flying one before our next contest in the fall.

Charles Dennis, of 21 Colonial avenue, Lynn—Your idea is all right to have both boys and girls in one squadron; also you may have both silver and gold wing members. Many squadrons are made up in this way. You can put your each letter right on below the commander bar. There are two little items at the bottom for this purpose.

Call your "Buyer's Service Bureau" in Lynn and they will tell you where to get the Balsa wood. You'll find the number in the business part of the telephone book.

Dollies at Summer Outings

DOLL WITH BEACH ACCESSORIES
PATTERN 487

What little girl is not delighted to have her doll's wardrobe as much like hers as possible? Give her a real thrill by making this pajama and sun suit with matching hat. If possible, make them of the same material as those of their proud owner and watch her delightedly take them with her on every outing just because of their appropriate dress. The garments are all very easy to sew, need little material and will fit a regulation 14-inch doll as well as the rag doll for which they were designed.

Pattern 487 comes to you with a transfer pattern of a doll, a pattern of the garments shown; material requirements; and detailed directions for making the doll and garments.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Boston Evening American, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

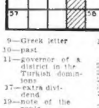
YESTERDAY'S ANSWER:



DUKETTE FLEES SALEM JAIL

"Dr." Robert H. Dukette had only four more days of an eight-months sentence to serve in Salem jail but he walked out today while the jail cook waited for him to return to the kitchen with a bag of potatoes.

Dukette was arrested in Lynn last November on charges of practising medicine without a license and larceny of medicine from a doctor's clinic.

Jail officials said the "doctor," on parole from Rhode Island state prison, faced a motor law violation upon his release but that he had been promised probation on that offense.

Linda and Jerome Finally Tell Each Other of Their Love; New Danger Is Faced

SYNOPSIS

Jerome Crain, young naval architect, and a beautiful society girl, named Linda, land on a strange island in the Caribbean after having fled from a quarantined yacht. Their skiff is mysteriously set adrift and their clothes stolen, yet there is no other sign of a living human at first. Intermittently, however, blood-curdling cries come from the jungle. The mystery deepens with the finding of a well-kept though deserted plantation. They take refuge in a small house there. That night, Linda's slip is torn off her by some unseen creature and again the eerie scream is heard. Linda, frightened, insists that Jerome stay near her.

The mystery of the night prowlers and stolen clothing clears with the appearance of a mother and father gorilla and their cub, and still another hairy monster decked out in Jerome's shirt. Jerome recites poetry and feeds the animals sugar-water to keep them from getting vicious. The dislike which Linda and Jerome had for one another changes to admiration for each other's courage in the face of that emotion.

CHAPTER XIX

Linda fell asleep. Jerome decided they were being shiftless and lazy in not making smoke signals from the high point of the island. After Papa Gorilla's first nocturnal visit they had not dared wander about and when they established friendly relations a sort of sloth descended on them.

Then he began to wonder if it was entirely sloth. There was a fascination in their idleness, he told himself. But now as he faced the situation frankly this alibi did not ring true. It was something else. Another factor had become responsible for their acceptance of an isolation that alternated languor with such terrifying episodes as had just occurred.

They were beginning to like it. There was a poignant charm in their detachment from a world overcharged with vexations large and small. Not only had they both been sick and tired of the futile lives they had been leading but more recently harassed at the state of their family and personal affairs. Here on this island nothing mattered, so far as the outer world was concerned.

But this was not enough to satisfy Jerome's natural candor with himself. He knew that he had been leaving out the real reason for their content with conditions that would be terrible to almost any other young man and woman of their class.

FALLING IN LOVE

They were falling in love with each other. Not in the usual more or less conventional way. Primitive impulses were growing in them. . . .

The isolation, return to absolute simplicity, sharing of danger that was terrifying and bizarre. Surmounting these dangers together had wrought a change in them. The civilized reliance that was being laid aside and in its place was growing a sympathy that ignored social traditions . . .

That Jerome told himself, was the danger here, and it must not occur. Sooner or later they must return to their former existence, unless violently interrupted. Barring such violence, life here on the island was simple and tranquil. That of civilization had become like walking a slack wire—a constant effort to equilibrium.

The shadows began to deepen. Linda slept on. Jerome went to the cook house to prepare supper.

There was no lack of quantity and variety of their wholesome tropic fare and he reflected that if this thing kept on much longer they would put on weight. Linda had complained that she was doing so, even worse she could not gauge the Rubenesque process without scales or clothes to wash her.

PIERCING SCREAM

One thing was certain, she was getting sweeter and lovelier. The petulance had gone from her face, and its look of hard intolerance.

Her long grey eyes, with their double fringe of lashes that were much darker than her hair, had lost their scornful mockery, and a nose that nature had tilted provocatively remained that way without an added aggravating slant. The boyish chin was merely firm and not defiant, and a mouth unshaped for sneers had discovered them to become smiling an seductive.

As he visualized the improvement in these several traits and turned his cocoanut he was horrified to hear a piercing scream. He rushed out in time to see the bowed and neckless back of the racketeer bounding across the cleared space under the trees, making for the jungle. The mischievous ape clutched in one paw a flittering pennant of white, and in the other a smaller one of pink.

It looked back with a derisive chatter, and at the same moment Linda burst into Jerome's field of vision in hot pursuit. She was armed with the stump of the broken oar, and all that she had on was the one stocking and her stylish shoes. But she was too angry and too desirous to care anything about that. A trail of abuse streamed out behind her.

"You miserable, sneaking monkey . . ." she cried. "Drop it! . . ."

"Cha-cha . . . chikoo . . . yah . . ." the racketeer retorted.

Jerome grabbed up an empty bottle and hurled it, although the range was long. Linda let drive with the oat-shaft. Both fell short of the target. The racketeer gave his derisive yell and the jungle absorbed him.

Linda whirled behind a low bush. She raged at Jerome over the top: "You go in and smash those cursed chests one after the other! Never mind the clothes. I want a gun. There must be some."

NO FIREARMS

"All right," he answered, and went into the house. He did not attack the chests but with a fragment of bottle glass he cut out the soft old Spanish leather that upholstered two of the high backed pirate's chairs. Museum pieces that had served generations before pertain as part of the chancel furniture of a cathedral.

Linda called through the verandah: "Jerome! That filthy ape has only grabbed off the little left on me, but he pulled my hair. Get me a gun out of one of those moldy old crates. He's coming back pretty soon and then I'll fix him."

"Coming back . . ."

"Of course. Now that he's got an edge on us he means to be our prime pest."

"How has he got an edge on us?" Jerome asked.

"He knew he had us scared before Papa ran him up a tree. When he started to puff out his chest and beat it you should have thrown a big rock at him."

"No rocks there . . ." Jerome had lain the pieces of fine soft leather on the table and was cutting out the thongs with which to fasten them together.

Linda went on: "Something's got to be done about him. Each fresh trick he gets away with will make him bolder. It's all heavy that gorillas take no interest in females not of their species. He pulled my hair exactly like some fresh cub of a schoolboy, but harder. Hell be sneaking up and pinching me next."

Jerome tossed out the skirt he had extemporized. "Put that on. Yes, something's got to be done about the Racketeer. The old man has kept him squelched and now he's tickled to find somebody he thinks he can bully. But it's certain there are no firearms in those chests."

"Why so?" The old cordovan painted leather had faded, but was decorative.

"The Dueno wouldn't be fool enough to leave firearms where anybody who might see fit to visit the island in his absence could get them. There are some bad hombres floating up and down this coast. Criminals and refugees and political fugitives."

"Well, there may be tools so that we may build a dugout or something. I tell you, Jerry, that ape is going from bad to worse."

"I might make a raft of bamboo to float us across to the mainland. The prevailing wind is on the coast."

"Then let's get busy."

"Tomorrow. It's getting dark." He spoke reluctantly.

"You don't seem so hot about it."

"I'm not. I hate to expose you to the hardship and danger of shoving off on a flimsy raft and landing God knows where or in the midst of whom. We might run into something worse than this bad actor of a cub gorilla."

"Is that all?" Linda asked.

"No." He gave her a level look. "You know how I feel about all this . . . and you. I don't want you to leave this Eden as the First Woman left hers. It's still a pretty touch world out there."

She stepped closer and laid her hand on his shoulder. "You are a good egg, Jerry. A stouter fella than I am."

"I love you, Linda."

"I know you do. So do I love you. Does anything else greatly matter?"

Your Mother Knows How Good It Is

If Your mother depended upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to tide her over the three critical periods of maturity, maternity and middle age. It's just as good a medicine today as it was then. Better, in fact, because our chemists have improved it several times to keep it up to date. If you are nervous, weak, rundown and tired out, give it a chance to help you, too. All druggists sell it.

"I was all rundown, had headaches and dizzy spells. My mother and sister had taken the Vegetable Compound for years with great results so I tried it. Now I have new pep and I am singing all day long".—Mrs. Thomas Burrowes, 42 Crawford Street, Newark, New Jersey.

"When Dorothy was sixteen I gave her your Vegetable Compound and it relieved all her troubles. I used to take it myself and it always helped me".—Mrs. Hollander, 2033 W. Walnut St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

"Before my baby was born I was so rundown and nervous that I could not do my own housework. My mother told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ease my nerves and prepare me for childbirth. After only a few bottles I was up and doing my work cheerfully. Childbirth was very easy, thanks to your medicine".—Mrs. John Ellis, 6308 So. Campbell Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

"No Backache Now"

"I have five children and a large house to attend to. Last summer I was weak and rundown, and suffered so with my back. Six bottles of the Vegetable Compound helped me wonderfully. I do all my work now, sew for others and have no backache."—Mrs. G. M. Ketel, 8558 N. Allegheny Ave., Portland, Ore.

MARTIAL LAW IS SEEN IN TRUCK STRIKE

By Associated Press

Minneapolis, July 25—The threat of military intervention in the truck drivers' strike hung over the city today.

Whether Governor Floyd B. Olson would place the city under the control of the 4000 National Guards stationed in and about Minneapolis depended on replies of the drivers and their employers to peace proposals, the chief executive indicated.

"For the time being," he said, "things will remain as they are."

The Rev. Francis Haas and E. H. Dunningan, acting for the government as conciliators, whipped into shape a new appeal to both sides, after admitting the disputants were unable to get together.

DECISION REACHED

Decision to submit new proposals to strikers and employers, whose dispute led to one death and injuries to 67 other men, most of whom were wounded in attacking a loaded truck, was reached last night at a conference.

Mayor A. G. Bainbridge, at whose summer home conferees met, maintained his former position that police should and would convoy trucks with armed guards if owners requested such protection. The Governor and the two mediators centered their hopes on new recommendations for ending the dispute.

Wages, arbitration, and union recognition, it was understood, would be embodied in their appeal to disputants. Both would be asked to make concessions as a common working basis for opening negotiations could be achieved.

CLEANERS BACK

Employes of Minneapolis dry cleaning plants and laundries, who struck in sympathy with the drivers, voted late last night to return to work this morning.

They were assured their employers were willing to continue wage negotiations.

Labor Board Acts in Cattle Strike

By Universal Service

Chicago, July 25—The Chicago regional labor board with Carl Steffensen, secretary, acting as mediator, has taken a hand in the strike of cattle handlers and commission men at the Union stock yards, which was entering yesterday leaving 50,000 head of cattle thirsting in the city's record heat of 105 degrees.

Steffensen said he had information that the building trades union workers were attempting to reconstruct the yards from the effects of the disastrous fire two months ago, might walk out today.

Nationally, the cattle handlers strike has a serious effect as no cattle can be accepted at the yards from the burned out prairies and stockfarms of the nation, during the next few days. Shipments of cattle enroute will have to be turned back to their destinations, and meantime will have to be watered and fed or their cattle car pens by railroads handling them.

Federal intervention in the strike has been asked by D. S. Mohler, chief of the stockyards division of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Dock Strikers Vote Arbitration

By Associated Press

San Francisco, July 25—Longshoremen of the Pacific coast have voted overwhelmingly in favor of arbitration, it was learned early today.

The vote has been counted in all ports with the exception of Seattle and Pacific Northwest. Those cannot change the results of the vote, it was stated.

Lad Takes Nap in Field

Little Richard Swan, 3, was serenely asleep in the grass when discovered by James Cooper, 29 Lambert avenue, last night, as he was taking a short cut across a field. At the Roxbury Crossing station Dicky hashfully refused to tell his name. At 11 p. m. police took the tot to the Chardon Street Home. It was 11:30 p. m. when the child's father, Arthur Swan of 52 Guild street, first missed Richard, who was found at Station 10. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

SUMMER FOODS EXPLAINED

Housewives by the hundreds are thronging Gilchrist's sixth floor this week in quest of the solution to their most pressing summer problem—the preparation of cold dishes on hot days.

Under the direction of Martha Lee, of the Boston Evening American, and other culinary experts, actual demonstrations of how to prepare inviting hot weather foods are being given twice a day at 10 a. m. and at 3 p. m. daily, except Saturday.

Suggestions as to where and how to serve the delicacies are also given, with much emphasis on the popular "porch suppers."

In addition to the demonstrations, a contest is being conducted for the best recipe for a cold cookery dish requiring a refrigerator to fix preparations. Gilchrist's will award th ee prizes, and the winners will be eligible for 100 prizes offered by the Norge Manufacturing Company in a nation-wide contest.

Man Held in Attack

Alberto Caseruzzi, 34, of North Bennett street, North End, is under arrest today charged with attacking Sylvio Monilli, 43, of Tileston street, North End, who was allegedly hit over the head with a shovel.

Career Ends

Pneumonia brought to an end the career of Frederick W. Worsley, of Commonwealth avenue Brighton, circulation manager of the Boston Daily Record, and for 30 years a newspaperman.

'FRED' WORSLEY IS DEAD

Frederick W. Worsley, circulation manager of the Boston Daily Record, died this morning at St. Elizabeth's Hospital of pneumonia. He had been in ill health for some time.

He came to the Record, in 1931, from the Albany Times-Union, following five years as circulation manager of the Boston Herald-Traveler nine years with the old Traveler, and 14 years with the Boston Evening American.

He is survived by his wife Eleanor Worsley. Funeral services will be held Friday from St. Columbkilles Church, Market street, Brighton. Burial will be in Mount Auburn cemetery, Cambridge.

His death will be widely mourned by hundreds of Boston newspapermen, who knew him personally during his 30 years of newspaper work here.

Of a kindly and considerate nature, Mr. Worsley was loved and respected by all who associated with him.

The remains will be buried from Crosby Undertaking Chapel at 867 Beacon street Friday at 9 a. m.

Curley, Cole in Upstate Meeting

Springfield, July 25—Former Mayor James M. Curley of Boston and General Charles M. Cole, candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor continued their western campaign today after their paths had crossed in the lobby of Holyoke hotel.

While the two candidates did not clasp hands, Curley said:

"I have no quarrel with General Cole. He was beaten the day he was nominated. My fight —is with the pampered child of Morgan, Gaspar Bacon."

General Cole will speak today in Chicopee and Springfield, following a meeting with his workers here. Tomorrow talks in Pittsfield and North Adams are scheduled.

Rich Sportsman Killed

Rehoboth, Del., July 25—Allen L. Lauriston, 40, wealthy building contractor of Wilmington, and a marksman, aviator and sportsman, crashed into the ocean in his plane an was killed.

X-9'ERS TO SEE BRAVES GAME

The next party fun for members of the Secret Agent X-9 Cub of the Boston Evening American will be staged tomorrow through the kindness of Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston National League Baseball Club.

That's right! You Secret Agents are to be guests tomorrow at the game between the Boston Braves and the Cincinnati Reds, with everything free.

Secret Agents only have to go to the Babcock street entrance to Braves Field, show their membership cards and badges and they will be admitted to the park, free of charge, and the Braves hope the Secret Agents will root for the home team.

This party holds the promise of a lot of fun for Thursday afternoon.

War Enoch Arden Home After Years as Prisoner

By Associated Press

Berlin, July 25—Twenty years after a German soldier marched away to war. He returned last weekend, broken in mind through years of forced labor in Siberian mines, to find himself a modern Enoch Arden.

For Ernst Erich W., long officially dead, learned his wife had remarried and gone away. He has been reunited with the aged mother and a 19-year-old daughter whom he had never seen.

Details of the story were recounted by the Deutsche Zeitung. Erich W. 25 at the outbreak of the World War, was drafted to the colors and fought under Marshal von Hindenburg at the battle of Tannenberg in East Prussia.

Then all trace of him was lost. He was listed as missing and later was officially declared dead.

Two years ago a visiting Red Cross committee in a remote Siberian village took pity on a walking skeleton who said he was a German prisoner of war.

After long negotiations he was granted freedom and taken to Davos, Switzerland, where he recovered slowly. Then he was sent to Neukoelln, a suburb of Berlin, his home.

Stumble Kills Trapeze Ace

By Associated Press

Los Angeles, July 25—Fire years Florine La Velle defied death from the flying trapeze of the "big top."

She tripped over her pet dog at the head of a flight of stairs. She declined the services of a physician and last night she died of the injuries.

Her uncle, Thomas Agnew, said his niece retired several years ago after a circus career during which she was a member of the Flying Greers two decades ago.

CHURCH MARKS 220TH YEAR

Plans were being completed today for the 220th anniversary of historic St. Michael's church, Marblehead, Saturday, with a street fair.

The fair will include among its chief attractions a loan display of flags. This will include the first flag planted on the North American continent in 1497. Also will be shown the first banner of the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1707.

[illegible] The workers in the kitchen seemed to be mostly Filipino boys.

Next door a small printing office with a [illegible] power press and one hand press at work. In another corner a long table with an officer at the head and half a dozen seamen with writing materials and little black books through which they were reading. Some class in electrical engineering or navigation or applied mechanics likely.

And every minute or two a raucous and not particularly clear loud-speaker blatted forth orders. [illegible] One [illegible] the captain himself was asked to report on the bridge, but mostly the instructions were aimed at the humbler sort. Something was to be done and no waiting. On bulletin boards here and there was pinned the schedule for the day from reveille at 6:30 all the way to moving pictures at 20:30 (8:30 to you). The navy uses the continental time system instead of saying A. M. and P. M. The young man in the moving picture booth looking out over the stern deck told us they had movies about every night.

The impression a casual visitor got was that there are a good many places where a boy would be worse off than in the navy. The whole ship seemed such a roomy, yet breezy domestic, club-like sort of place. The gunnery looked like interesting machines to learn about and take apart and make tricks. But [illegible] in the low [illegible] away [illegible] out of sight was a slightly rusty piece of apparatus labeled "Battle telephone." And I heard a young seaman answer a question as to whether he would enlist again: "Well, I don't know. There's too much scrubbing."

So maybe the even the Navy has its drawbacks, like everything else.

Her barnstorming proved the talkies have not taken all the customers in the outland. For, in the worst period of theatrical history she came back to New York with a deserved rest with a snug fortune. And what is more, revived a fine tradition.

One sees amazing things in this lunatic metropolis. He was a big raw-boned Max Baer sort of fellow at the next table in a restaurant selecting his order. Fingernails of the hands that held the menu were lacquered a flaming red.

Then there was the dandy Bob Brinkerhoff whom I saw on the Plaza steps in the natural spotlight of a dazzle of noonday sunshine. He was a monotone of a gray—from suit, hat, spats, shirt and tie to gray walking stick. In his lapel was notched a bright red rose. Suddenly as we gawked he tripped on the steps and into—I'd kiss a pig if it wasn't—a dove gray limousine.

He long ago discovered that Theodore [illegible] had a cultured scholar, a lover of the classics and keen student of international affairs.

DeWolf Hopper, in the '70s [illegible] Romeo. He spends most of his time these days in Chicago and when he has to leave Mrs. Hopper for New York engagements on the radio he spends quite a sum on telephone calls and telegrams. On his most recent engagement he tried to avoid what has become to him a [illegible] "Casey at the Bat," but his sponsors [illegible] the 3000th time.

Charles M. Schwab's [illegible] French chateau is the last of Riverside Drive's private mansions with landscaped terrace, its old towers and high iron fence. Upkeep—and it's the best kept place in town—is reported at a quarter million a year. On the upper East Side the Andrew Carnegie home is just as it was when the Laird of Skibo passed on, the last of the [illegible] type of homes along what was once Millionaire Row.

The green gable Clarke mansion in the 70's, the castle of the copper magnate, now an apartment house, was the highspot of Millionaire Row when I came to town. I went there as a reporter and saw my first private elevator self manipulated by push buttons and first butler with side wheel whiskers and [illegible] They seemed to me then as now the spiffiest of all gadgets in grand living.

Next you hear I may be yelling at passersby from behind a criss-cross of bars: "Hey, Jack, gotta match." While several companions were dawdling over sodas in a 42d street drug store I idled at the clock counter. And 8 alarm clocks were wound and set to go off an hour later. Next week I open the boat rocking season.

Congressman Says He'll Do Possible Shift in Political Winds

The Three Wagers Held in a Fixed Position to Each Other By the Angle Steel Frame are Drawn by the Car at a Very Good Speed and Cut at 10 Foot Swath, According to Frisby.

Washington (N. J.)—Badgered by newssharks eager to discover his opinion of his own chances of being mentioned, nominated and elected to office in the F.D. Congressman Horace B. Frisby today revealed his ace in the hole. "You boys may be worried," snarled Frisby in a jocular vein, "but I'm not. What if my opponents do win, due to the backing they will receive from the big interests and those who believe in half-baked radical ideas unsupported by all thinking Americans? What if they do win? You know what'll happen. Grass will grow in the streets. Yes sir, grass will grow in the streets. And that's where the Frisby Little Gem Street Mower will come in mighty handy. As I see it, if my opponents are elected, a Frisby Street Mower will be installed in back of every motor car operating on our highways today. And you can bet a cookie I'll get a nice piece of change from royalties. If I'm elected, well and good. But Frisby's sitting pretty, no matter what happens."

Jones Gets Trial; Chronic Small Timers Sport as Daily Chore

Rockingham's Neglect Dutra's Luck Omen Thief-Proof Parks

By AUSTEN LAKE

LITTLE JOHNNY" JONES of Worcester, the perennial rookie who is now the leading hitter of that eccentric baseball circuit the Northeastern League is being looked over by the Braves this afternoon This is not important except for the queer history of this in again out-again character

Auston Lake

Three years ago, when the Albany club fell apart, Johnny, always a fair minor league player, found himself adrift without a job. He hied down to Philadelphia his home city, and asked Connie Mack, please could he be put on the Athletics' payroll

"No," said Connie, "But here's a pass for this afternoon's ball game

Johnny, discouraged, perched on the grandstand slopes and watched the game with a jaundiced eye. A long fly went out to center field with Mule Haas in close pursuit Haas stumbled, rolling over and over, and when he arose he had a dislocated shoulder.

It left the Athletics shorthanded in the outfield. So, presently, to his vast astonishment, Johnny heard himself being paged brough the loud speaker on the center field fence:

"Will Mr. Johnny Jones please report to the clubhouse," said the giant voice.

And that evening when the Athletics rolled westward, Johnny Jones rolled with them, too, signed on as an emergency member of the team. And he stayed until Haas recovered, after which Connie Mack placed him with a minor league farm.

IT REMINDS ME of the many chronic minor league stars, who have burned up the weedy back country leagues but are so much duck-broth for major league pitching. There have been many, Bevo LeBourveau, Ike Boone, Ben Hauser, Oscar Eckhardt, etc

Here then is Eckhardt leading the Pacific Coast league at bat, a thing that he usually does each season, a hairy-eared veteran whom the Braves brought to training camp several seasons ago and who, it was readily seen, was a "one-ball hitter."

If you pitched up around his chin, Oscar would flog the ball out of the park. But if you fed him sneaky, waist line pitches, Oscar would tie himself into a pretzel knot. He and his type are men that the late Barney Dreyfuss once described, as players with minor league hearts

GENE SARAZEN, FRESHLY returned from touring England, says "I am sick of golf. The professional championship at Buffalo will be my last tournament this year

Somehow it recalls the little man, a retired grocer from Peoria, Ill., who was in St. Petersburg, Fla., several spring season's ago, and who told me, one day, "I am not interested in baseball, but this afternoon I am going out to see Babe Ruth, the man who makes more in six months of play than I have saved in a lifetime of hard work"

The average citizen finds it hard to realize that golf or baseball, to the professional player, is often just as much a drudge as selling kippered herring to customers over the counter of sitting on a bookkeeper's stool.

IT IS UNBELIEVABLE that Rockingham Race Track, with several million dollars worth of horse flesh and gear in those rickety sheds, filled with inflammable material, does not have a single piece of fire apparatus on the ground, or even a sufficient water supply to fight flames.

OLIN DUTRA, THE olive-skinned golf champion, was convalescing from amoebic dysentery, when he won his title earlier in the year. When he arrived in Buffalo for the P. G. A. tourney, he announced to the assembled pros. "Look out boys, I've got it again. His physician has warned Dutra not to play for another week at least, but the latter took the dread infection as a favorable augury. Olin was mistaken this time for he was eliminated in the medal round

Such is the force of superstition in sport

I recall when Johnny Hodapp was having his consecutive hitting streak for the Red Sox last year, he began on the day that he strained a thigh muscle and had it painted with iodine.

Thereafter every day, although the strain had disappeared, he painted the same spot with a fresh smear of the amber antiseptic until his string was broken. Which was just as well, because by that time his thigh was badly blistered.

Babe Ruth, during the summer of 1932, used to squirt drops of a brand of eye wash into his brown orbs, before each game, unknowing that certain prankish Yankee teammates had filled the bottle with tap-water. One day Lou Gehrig stepped up, after Babe had doused his eyes, and took a long drink from the bottle.

"Hey," shouted Babe, "That's poison."

That afternoon Lou hit a pair of home runs, while Babe knocked only one. "Guess you had the right dope," grunted Ruth Whereat Lou, fearful that the Babe would actually buy a fresh bottle and swizzle from it next day, told him the truth

FRANK, SON OF THE LATE Harry Stevens and heir to the latter's ball park and race track food concessions, was held up and robbed of $3000 recently, the day's receipts from hot dogs and peanuts.

Frequently I have heard Boston sport fans remark on how easy it would be for gangsters to raid the cashboxes at the ball parks after a well-attended game. But, it would actually be a desperate venture, because the ballways leading to the office treasury are always crowded with police, artillery unlimbered and swinging from their hips.

No cash convoy is more carefully guarded than those which move between the ball parks and the banks.

In the early days of wrestling, Paul Bowser tells me that he had no way of depositing his "gate" after his midnight wrestling shows, and often had large sums stowed overnight in his Stuart street office safe. In later years, however, the banks have made arrangements to receive this cash directly from the box office

Frank Stevens' mistake then was in not shipping his day's profits direct from the ball park, but in carrying it to his apartment instead. There in the hallway, without protection, he was jammed against the wall and his money satchel was snatched. Also, it's an insight into how much profit there is in pop, sausages and peanuts.

WALLY HERO ON ROAD

Braves Slugger Hot on Trail of Mel Ott

Powerful legs and wrists of steel have again put Wally Berger, slugging outfielder of the Braves, back in the fight for home-run honors in the National League. At the present time Mel Ott of the Giants is leading our Wally by one circuit clout. Of the two Berger is the most natural hitter, but Ott has the advantage in playing 17 games at the Polo Grounds where the left field barrier is but 257 feet from home plate. Berger, on the other hand, a dead left field batter, must hit better than 559 feet to clear the screen in right field at the Braves Field. O'Farrell Out as Reds' Manager, Say Reports

By Mac Kase

Is Bob O'Farrell in or out as manager of the Cincinnati Reds?

Middle-West rumors say [illegible]

Reports from Cincinnati say [illegible]

Larry McPhail, vice-president and general manager of the Reds, issued a statement in the matter today. His traveling secretary James R. Beston, now in Boston, with the Reds, made it public. It follows:

LOYAL, SO WHAT?

"Bob O'Farrell is the manager of the Reds. We have not held Bob responsible for the showing of the team, which has been disappointing to us, and also to Bob Bob O'Farrell is a very loyal and dependable fellow. I have been busy with other matters and have not been in touch with Bob in the past few days. We will be influenced a great deal by what Bob has to say when he arrives in Cincinnati Friday."

The statement carries an ominous ring as far as O'Farrell is concerned. "We will be influenced by what Bob has to say" is McPhail's quotation, but Western correspondents say that from present indications

Tardiness of Heavy Industries Seen as Basic Cause

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Ralph T. Crane

Sketch: Ralph T. Crane has been nominated for the presidency of the Investment Bankers Association of America . . . Tantamount to election . . . An with the new code and security laws a most important office . . . Since the Investment Bankers Association will find that upon it devolves the duty of keeping the great bulk of security dealers informed as to new rulings and practices . . . Mr Crane as vice president of Brown Harriman & Company with his early savings bank and Federal Reserve training is well qualified to do the job now . . .

A few days ago we presented the proposition that the rails and the industrials could be swapping places in the general market scheme. That from now on the rails because of their sad news burden would tend more or less lose their ability to show the way to the rest of the list. Now the market letter of Paine Webber presents the theory that this change in fundamentals may be so far reaching as to destroy the interrelated movement of the two alle-getter.

Briefs: We are still of a mind . . . Would not buy stocks here . . . And would lighten up on any rally it account caused worry during the slide of early week . . . While there are many strong spots we do not want to allow them to tempt us to . . .

STOCKS LOWER AS SELLING CONTINUES

New York, July 25—The stock market today showed no relief from liquidation despite the Wall Street hopes of a rally based on technical considerations and the radio address this afternoon of Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the securities and exchange commission.

The selling started in metal shares, and then spread to the rest of the list. Scores of new lows were established on the latest weakness, and selling from margin accounts was responsible. Brokers reported the biggest margin calls in about a year, with the small account the hardest hit.

The break stated after a show of firmness in the early dealings when the rails led a feeble rally. The gains swere wiped out and losses running to 2 points and more substituted.

Stocks again met support on the break and displayed rallying tendencies when the pressure lifted.

Better action of commodities was ignored.

During the first hour numerous irregularities appeared in the list. Activity dwindled on the recoveries.

Issues down a point or so included American Steel Foundries, Allied Chemical, Delaware & Hudson, Steel preferred, U. S. Smelting and United Fruit. Pennsylvania dropped 2. J. I. Case was up 2.

Sales to 11 a. m. approximated 300,000 shares.

While record heat in the West and drought damage held the headlines, Wall Street also gave some attention to mid-week business statistics. On the whole, these revealed little change in the seasonal tendency to mark time.

The Iron age commented, in its weekly summary, that the summer lull in the steel industry had become pronounced and estimated production had receded to 27½ per cent of capacity compared with 28 per cent a week ago.

It noted that the new heat and increased crop damage had accentuated caution.

Electric Power output regained its lead over 1934 by a small margin after dropping slightly behind recently. The Edison Electric Institute estimated power consumption last week was six-tenths of one per cent higher than in the corresponding 1933 period.

Jones & Laughlin, one of the first steel companies to report second quarter earnings, showed profit for the period of $886,252 compared with $1,682,801 in the like period last year. The Bethlehem Steel report was expected tomorrow.

CURB MARKET IS IRREGULAR

By International News Service

New York, July 25—A highly irregular price movement was again visible on the curb market in the forenoon trading today. Such slight rallies as did take place at the opening appeared to be due to short covering.

Utilities were a shade stronger under the leadership of Electric Bond and Share which advanced ⅛ to 11¼.

The packing shares, however, were under pressure with Swift off ⅜ at 16¼ apparently reflecting the stock yard strike.

Specialties continued heavy as Greyhound lost ⅝ at 17⅜, and American Cyanamid ¼ to 17⅛.

Mining shares showed the best tone with Pioneer Gold up ½ to 12.

BRINKERHOFF JOINS AYER

Mr. Robert H. Brinkerhoff today joined the staff of the Boston office of N. W. Ayer & Son, Inc. For the last five years, Mr. Brinkerhoff has been connected with the Philadelphia headquarters of that agency.

He is a graduate of Dartmouth College, class of 1929, and the son of R. M. Brinkerhoff, the famous magazine illustrator and newspaper cartoonist.

Mr. Brinkerhoff's activities in the Boston office of N. W. Ayer & Son, Inc., will be along general service lines.

Grain Prices Are Higher in Chicago

Chicago, July 25 (AP)—Grain prices showed an early upward trend today after an irregular start. Unexpected firmness of the Liverpool wheat market, together with bullish crop reports from Canada, had a stimulating effect. Opening ¼ off to ⅜ up, September new 97⅞-98⅛, Chicago wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started at ¼-1⅛ gain, September 65-65¾, and held near the initial limits.

Dollar Lower in Paris Trading

Paris, July 25 (AP)—The United States dollar lost one centime today, opening and closing at 15.165 Francs (6.594 cents to the Franc). Yesterday's close was 15.175 Francs (6.589 cents).

Bar Silver Steady

London, July 25 (AP)—Bar silver 20, unchanged at 20⅛d.

Operating Statements of Rails Studied

A feature of railroad operating statements this year has been the increase in maintenance expenditures brought about by the higher level of traffic and the apparent desire of railroad management to make up the deferred maintenance incurred during the depression.

Thus, whereas a year ago many roads were able to carry the major portion of increased gross to net, it is not uncommon now to find decreases in net operating income despite increased gross.

However, in view of higher material costs and increased expenses brought about by restoration of the wage cut and the new pension law, it might be expected that the roads will cut down maintenance expenditures in an effort to bolster net earnings.

The accompanying tabulation prepared by Theodore Prince & Co., presents a summary of carloadings and earnings results thus far this year and offers a basis which may provide a clue as to the probable June results of the various carriers.

By comparing June, 1934, carloadings with those of May, 1934, an indication may be had of whether gross earnings will increase or decrease for June, 1934. Actual May, 1934, results are given, so that some idea of what the June operating figures may be can be formulated.

RUDOLPH TURCOTTE PHILIP L. PATRIE

Rudolph H. Turcotte, 14, and Philip L. Patrie, 16, both of Salem, are on their way to the Century of Progress at Chicago because they sold so many Boston Evening Americans and Boston Sunday Advertisers that their profits ran up into "big money." They sell papers for A. F. Goldsmith, of Front street, Salem. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Cambridge Child on Air Tonight

By N. F. T.

It's a far cry from 15 on Fifth street in Cambridge to the frozen wastes of Little America, but Marie Byrd Carbone, aged 6 months, exerts the efforts this evening (WNAC) at 10 o'clock. Most likely Alphonse Carbone, ex-marine and now chief cook and harmonica virtuoso with the Admiral Byrd expedition, will be listening intently away off there.

Dad has never seen Marie, having left with the exploring group before her advent into a world of wondrous things such as the radio facilities carrying her voice to him across 10,000 miles or more between New England and Little America.

* * *

Also included in the above air exchange of greeting, is the "voice" of Joseph Byrd Pelter, aged 8 months, "speaking" to his pop who serves as an aerial surveyer for Admiral Byrd.

Incidentally, it is the opinion of Mrs. Pelter that radio is not needed if young Joe decides to expand his lungs. It is her belief that the little fellow could easily be heard in the Antarctic when he gets down to serious vocalizing.

In any event, microphones have been installed at both the Cambridge and Pensacola homes of the Carbones and Pelters. Thus and so between 10 and 10:30, two fond fathers are expected to catch an earful of what their two infants have to "say" about this business of being away from home so long.

* * *

GIFTED GROUP

Hearing the new Phil Spitalny directed musical organization of 25 girls (WBZ) last night, as aired through these tinklets at 10:30, 23 musicians is a sizeable task in prompts some due congratulation here. In the first place, directing itself, even if they be much.

When it comes to wielding a stick over that many women, Phil Spitalny certainly deserves to take a bow. In all seriousness, the unique group, now playing at Loew's Orpheum Theatre, went on the air for the first time since forming. What's more they turned in a very striking and well balanced microphone performance from start to finish. They undoubtedly have a splendid future in the radio and theatrical world.

* * *

Fred Allen and his humorous "Hour of Smiles" company will run through a "Summer Hotel" setting (WEEI) as the locale for their 9 to 10 o'clock sixty minutes of loudspeaker fun tonight.

SHINING STAR

Marjorie Daw, well known musical comedy ingenue, takes the studio spotlight when the new Fox furriers feature is taking the air behaviours tonight (WEEI) come 8:30. It's said to be a sparkling half hour studio show, abounding with laughs and representing actual innovation as to radio technique. That will be welcome. Warren Hull, Buddy Clark, Ethel Grenier, as well as Rakow and his music men, will support Miss Daw during the entire presentation.

FRANCIS J. CRONIN

Francis J. Cronin . . . At the organ . . . Sees all the sunrises . . . When there are sunrises . . . because Francis J Cronin gets up at 5:50 even morning . . . And goes on the air at 6:30 . . . When most men are still foggy with sleep.

Winter and summer . . . For the past two years . . . Not to mention spring and fall . . . He has been the man that wakes up the bugler . . . And the funny part of it all is . . . He likes it . . . And so do his listeners . . . On this and other of his programs . . . Over the Yankee network.

This early bird was born in Cambridge . . . But now lives in Newton . . . With Mrs. Cronin, three daughters and two sons . . . And do they get up early, too?

When he was eight he started to study music . . . And when he was 14 the organ . . . And when he was 17 he started teaching piano . . . And now can take both apart, and put them together again.

His first position was in St. John's Church, Swampscott . . . As organist and choirmaster . . . And his longest a nine-year stretch . . . In the Capitol Theater in Allston . . . Where he was organist . . . Among the Yankee Network in October of 1931 . . . After supervising rebuilding of the studio organ. . . . Five feet, 11 he stands . . . And weighs 190 . . . With his chief hobby that of designing organs . . . And his technical opinions respected everywhere . . . And with lesser hobbies swimming . . . And fishing . . . And baseball and football.

His received more than 5000 letters . . . From listeners . . . Plays about 15,000 compositions a year . . . And has his own music library . . . Containing between 7000 and 8000 selections . . . From current song hits to opera and symphonic excerpts.

Tomorrow's Radio Personality Portrait will be that of Bill Payne, the plumber who wouldn't plumb.

Guard Saves Swimmer

Americo Ruffo, 24, of Hampshire street, Cambridge, is recovering today from a narrow escape from drowning when he swam out beyond the buoys at Magazine Beach. He was saved by Philip Natin, a life-guard.

2 Newsboys On Way to Chicago

Westbound today to Chicago and the Century of Progress exposition, are two enterprising Salem merchandise boys whose business has been so good that they are traveling in style.

Philip L. Patrie, 16, is the older of the two and Rudolph H. Turcotte, 14, is his companion. They sell Boston Evening Americans and Boston Sunday Advertisers for A. F. Goldsmith of 34 Front street, Salem.

A few months ago they decided they wished to go to the World Fair at Chicago and they began saving the profits from their business.

And last night, they boarded a bus in Park square, settled down in a seat, made themselves comfortable and headed west.

Business so good in Salem and the fun is ahead in Chicago.

A new unit of the Order of the Sons of Italy in America will be instituted with appropriate ceremonies in Stoughton under the name of Lodge Allesandro Volta No. 1712, Sunday, at the Town Hall, Pearl street.

Sponsoring the new lodge, of which the charter members are Antonio Sisseila, Rocco Cosato and Joseph DeVito, will be lodge Italia No. 506 of Cambridge, under the direction of Venerable Joseph Frant. District Grand Deputy Phillip Mondello will deliver the charter and will install the following officers: Venerable Antonio Sciosci, Assistant venerable Guiseppe Lo Dico, former Venerable Giuseppe Struzziero, Orator Antonio LaCivita, Secretaries Paolo Trotta and Dominic De Matteo, Treasurer Giuseppe De Vito and Trustees Guido Ruggiero, Cappello Andrea, De Luca Carlo, Raimondo Antonio and Capozzoli Celidore.

WALSH LEAVES FOR CAPITAL

Senator David I. Walsh, after a day spent at his home in Clinton, left today for Washington to attend some committee hearings.

He declared that his health was good and that he felt considerably rested after a vacation of two weeks in the middle west.

"There is a great deal of interest here as to whether you will take the stump for General Cole in the primary," he was told.

"Yes, I suppose there is," the senator replied. "That has not to be decided now."

Classified Advertising Manager
Boston American-Sunday Advertiser
Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir:

We have been carrying on a highly successful advertising campaign, on Furniture, Storage and Moving, through the Classified columns of the Boston American-Sunday Advertiser.

I am taking this opportunity to express my appreciation for the courteous co-operation and helpful suggestions that have increased our returns, filling our storage warehouse. To date we have received greater returns from your newspapers than from any other medium.

Our increased business justifies our running an advertisement every day as we have secured many desirable new customers, and after all, nothing is more important than catering to the right sort of people.

Very truly yours,

X-RAY

Examination, consultation and trial treatment absolutely free to all who call before August 1st. The wonderful power of the X-ray and mercury quartz light treatment is accomplishing wonders in chronic diseases. No matter what your disease, remember Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., fulfils the above offer.

STOMACH ULCER

John W. Colwell, 67 School St., Somerville, Mass., says—"I carry Uncle Sam's mail. I was afflicted with a stomach ulcer. The pain was so severe that I could not sleep at night. All food distressed me. I became so debilitated that those who knew me spoke of how ill I looked. My wife told me of Dr. Walsh and acting upon her advice I had Dr. Walsh treat me and now I feel fine. I make this statement because I am grateful for what Dr. Walsh did for me and I hope that others will profit by my experience and obtain relief from their suffering." (Signed)
John W. Colwell.

Death of Dillinger Offers a Lesson

THE death of John Dillinger, "Public Enemy No. 1," under gunfire of Federal agents, offers a lesson that can be brought home to Massachusetts.

Those who killed this desperado were not hampered by State or city lines. They went after Dillinger and wiped him out most efficiently and satisfactorily.

Dillinger was dealt with in the way that criminals can best understand. No "smart" lawyer had a chance to fool justice. No jailers were offered opportunity to sell him his freedom.

The power of the law has been proven by the bullets that tore through its most notorious enemy and laid him cold in the arms of death.

The lesson offered by Dillinger's doom lies in the manner of its handling. Officials of justice who are not restrained by territorial boundaries or hampered by political powers have the best chance to "get their man."

At the last session of the Legislature on Beacon Hill a law was proposed, and its passage urged by Governor Ely and other responsible authorities, that would have extended the police power in Massachusetts.

Politicians managed to block the legislation that would have put our police forces on a firmer footing against criminals of the Dillinger type.

The proposed new force, like Dillinger's executioners, would have been able to work free of hampering town and city lines.

With other added police powers, the minions of the underworld would have had small chance against them.

With the cheering success of the campaign against Dillinger, it may well be that the next Legislature on Beacon Hill will pass a unified police law to give our forces of justice the power needed.

Autoists' Money Diverted

To the thousands of motorists unfortunate enough to be caught in its frequent and exasperating jams, the beautiful 25-mile ribbon to the North, known as the Newburyport Turnpike, brings nothing but unpleasant memories.

Almost obliterated traffic lane lines and the presence of four signal intersection lights contribute to make this crowded stretch of highway, once the pride of the state, a dangerous and tedious journey, especially on Sundays and holidays.

State highway officials say that only a major operation, namely the adding of 10 feet along its entire length to make it 40 feet wide, will adequately solve the problem. They admit that a re-painting of the traffic lanes and the erection of under or over passes, or traffic circles, would help.

Engineers are studying the widening, they say. But they shake their heads at the cost, yet to be estimated.

Yet during the last two years, $18,000,000 from the highway fund has been diverted to other uses. And three years ago $5,500,000 was given from the fund to the cities and towns, supposedly for street work.

Which leads us to wonder what has become of the promises made by the politicians to the people, when they finally accepted the gasoline tax idea, that money so raised would be devoted exclusively to the building of state highways.

Dana's Work In Peril

Particularly alarming to the people of Boston is the charge of the Federal Employes' Association that the builders of the "New Deal" are seeking to wreck the Civil Service.

Hailed as the greatest blow against political corruption in the United States, the Civil Service is the result largely of the work of the late Richard Henry Dana, 3d, Harvard oarsman, Boston lawyer, son-in-law of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow and public-spirited citizen of Cambridge.

He devoted the greater part of his life to the work of persuading the Federal and various state and municipal governments to adopt Civil Service.

Bostonians supported him and felt that his final triumph was theirs, too.

It is natural, therefore, that they are aroused by any move made to throw thousands of positions back into the maw of the spoils system.

As a matter of fact, the "New Dealers" seem content to place their friends in the many new emergency posts they have created.

It is essential, however, that we be on guard against any move to wreck the Civil Service.

That is our chief hope for honesty and ability and efficiency in government.

Law Helps the Wife

Remember Will Carleton's poem:

"Draw up the papers, lawyer, and make 'em good and stout,
For things at home are crossways and Betsy and I are out."

Farther along in the verses, the lawyer laughs when the old fellow settles a hundred dollars or so on his wife.

That's the way it goes in poetry. In real life, down in Rhode Island, it's different.

An 85-year-old farmer contesting the divorce suit of his 70-year-old wife, has been ordered by the court to pay $300 to the wife's counsel.

Under the Rhode Island law, a husband is responsible in a divorce case for his wife's counsel fees.

It seems a good idea to give the wife "a break" once in a while.

Boston Gerrymander?

For years the chief complaint of every Democrat in Massachusetts has been the manner in which Republican legislators are alleged to have gerrymandered the State to insure their control of the General Court.

Now the Democrats in the City Council have a chance to do a little gerrymandering. It will be interesting to see if they adopt the practice that their party has so often condemned.

As a result of the Legislature's failure to redraw the city ward lines every 10 years, as is its privilege under the law, that right now devolves on the Councillors. Will they take advantage of it to strengthen their own political tenures?

Councillor McGrath of Dorchester has already asked that a committee of seven be named for the redistricting. If appointed, it will be interesting to see if it thinks that what is sauce for the goose is also sauce for the gander.

Daily Bible Text "O thou afflicted, tossed with tempest and not comforted; Behold, I will lay thy stones with fair colors, thy foundations with sapphires, thy windows of agates, thy agates with carbuncles, and thy borders with precious stones."—Isaiah liv, 11, 12.

Girl and 'Stage'

By Winifred Black

Seven-year-old is passing through a stage.

She says so herself, and somehow when seven-year-old looks at you with those soft brown eyes and makes a statement in a matter of fact voice and manner, you believe she knows what she is talking about.

Seven-year-old and her mother were at a week-end resort and as often happens when a pretty child is at a hotel, the other guests began to spoil and pet her too much.

So one evening at dinner, seven-year-old—with the air of one who has got rather silly and mother got worried and I'm afraid, a little bit ashamed.

Winifred Black

After dinner, as they were tilting a little walk, with arms twined around each other, mother spoke to her daughter about her behavior at dinner, and added, "do you know, my dear, mother felt a little bit ashamed of you tonight for the first time in your life—what in the world happened to make you behave so?"

Seven-year-old shrugged expressive shoulders, and with a merry twinkle in her eye, replied:

"Oh, you don't need to be worried about that, mother—don't you know that all children have to go through these stages?"

And mother was puzzled, how to answer and now she is worried.

But I don't believe mother has much to worry about, do you?

If seven-year-old can go through life analyzing every phase and not taking it too seriously, it seems to me that there is great contentment and deep enjoyment ahead of her.

I once knew a little girl about her age who was given too much to interspection and to taking little things seriously.

She was at a child's party in a small town and when the cookies were passed around, this poor little shy girl managed to drop one of the cookies off the plate, and, oh, the world just stopped moving around for her—for days and days.

She went home and told her mother about it and brooded over it for a long time.

Now, if I had been the mother of that little girl, I think I should have worried.

But with seven-year-old—never. Taking life as it comes—with illusions and disillusions—its happiness and its tears—it's all just a phase—its surprises and disappointments.

Here's looking at you, seven-year-old—keep that calm, matter-of-fact attitude toward whatever experience life has to offer, and I'm willing to bet you come through fairly unscathed.

What do you think about it?

Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN

1. Always play up to the mature woman, not the Sweet Young Thing, who holds the whip-hand socially and gives most of the week-end parties. She can get you in—or freeze you out.

2. Always star your hostess, no matter if she is ten years your senior and has fallen arches and a cast in her eye. She may not have the slightest sentimental interest in you—but a woman never loses her vanity until the last breath.

3. When invited for a day at the country house, be sure to leave your evening clothes. Your hostess may expect you to stay for dinner; so, don't leave her up a tree, in order to rush back for that date in town.

4. Concentrate most of your attention and enthusiasm on the MOTHERS of the family pack. Remember that it is they who own the country houses, the bungalows and the cabanas—and who do most of the inviting and entertaining.

5. Never, by any chance, let your admiration for one woman cause you to neglect another woman. Hell hath no fury like a woman who feels that she is left out of the picture.

6. When you are visiting one woman and drinking her cocktails, never make the foolish mistake of trying to date up any other woman you may meet at her house. Those girls always TELL!

7. Always play a woman's game and follow her lead. If she wishes to leave the impression that you are her special property, don't get stage fright and spoil the picture. She may be only trying to get another man's GOAT—not to get YOU.

8. Don't mix your women—and don't "change cars" too quickly, lest violently, too obviously or too often. No woman likes to feel that she is "one of a procession," and men with a Don Juan reputation soon cease to be invited to the best houses.

9. If you can't "carry your liquor," leave it in the glass. The butler will enjoy it. Two cocktails may make you bright, but three may make you just a terrible problem—and as welcome at the next party as was Dillinger.

Women run the social game—and they have a code which is far more rigid and far older than any under the NRA.

If you want to be "among those invited," it is not enough to know how to click your heels together, bow from the waist and do the European handclasp. You've got to KNOW WOMEN!

Listen, World! -:- By Elsie Robinson

THIRD DEGREE!

They use on the "Third Degree" a certain hideous device to make a man talk. When all other forms of persuasion fail, he is beaten over his bare stomach with a rubber hose.

"That," they say grimly "gets action."

It does.

Once, shrilly before he died, I saw a man who had been so beaten. His eyes were pitiful, the mouth a flapping rag. He and anything he was told to say—in a drooling mumble of terror.

Elsie Robinson

I knew what had happened, yet it would not have been easy to prove. There was only a slightly darkened swelling. But inwardly he was broken to a pulp.

I have never been able to shake off the horror of that memory. It comes back to me whenever I meet another human being who as been Third Degreed. I meet them very often. They are not criminals. They have never been inside a jail. Yet, as surely as that dying prisoner, they have been Third Degreed—

THIRD DEGREE BY EMOTIONAL SLUGGLING.

Compared with that soft, secret slugging of tears and kisses, whines, whimpers and clinging hands, a rubber hose is merciful. Often it begins in infancy.

"Baby naughty? Mama cry! Poo-oor Mama! . . . Bad, b-a-a-ad baby!"

A banged door. Silence. Then a child's gulping scream of terror. "Mama! Mama, come back! Baby be good!"

The Third Degree has begun.

Presently, the banged door no longer suffices. But the Third Degree continues successfully with variations through childhood, nonescence, maturity.

Thud—thud—thud—on a sensitive, quivering spirit. Till Mama's tantrums of tears or temper . . . reproaches of ingratitude—"think of all I've done for you" — moans of suffering . . . pleas of helplessness . . . constant, clinging demands . . . or even more devastating solicitude and flattery.

Thud—thud—thud—thud. All in the name of love. "Beautiful mother love" . . . You have only one mother" . . . Thud—thud—thud. Day after day—year after year—the Third Degree goes on. And with each thud, with each sob or smile, each threat or reproach, SOMETHING BREAKS . . . some strong, free, proud portion of the spirit is battered to a pulp.

REST OF THE STORY

You know the rest of that story. High-spirited youngsters turning into vicious animals under a sentimental slugging against which they have no defense.

Or even more tragic still men and women of mature years, unable to face the responsibilities or make the adjustments of life because of crippled wills.

Nor is it always the mother who wields the crippling lash, though she, through her inevitable intimacy, has the most vicious opportunity. Often it is a bullying father . . . a cry-baby husband . . . a possessive wife, friend or sweetheart . . . a selfish child—

"If you really cared—all I ask is just the least little thought but I guess I haven't the right to even that"—

"But of course, I don't matter. Go on—have your pleasure—forget about ME—"

Thud—thud—thud—drawing secret blood with each sweetly sneering word—

Thud — thud — thud — crawling, cluttering, clinging, until the mind crumbles in shameful surrender—until the very soul is crushed in its cruel folds—

AND THEY CALL IT LOVE!

Human Side of the News; Seeking Holy Grail

By Edwin C. Hill

Some men tell us that the age of reason has supplanted the age of faith, but the quest of the Holy Grail goes on through the centuries. Men still are moved by high romance—and Gawain and Galahad will live when Hitler and Stalin are forgotten.

This time it is Walter Rummel, the American composer, and Otto Rahn, German scientist, who think they have found the temple of the silver chalice of man's noblest hopes.

They supplement the work of Marcel Arnaud, French electrical engineer, who three years ago began excavations of the ruins of the Chateau de Montsegur, near Toulouse.

The chateau is on a mountain 1800 feet high and said to be almost hollow, with vast halls, temples and galleries where the medieval sect of the Catharists took refuge from the armies of King Louis IX.

INSPIRED LEGEND

Among the great array of books on the Holy Grail, it is the Quete de San Grail, written by Robert de Barron, at the end of the 12th century, which has guided modern archaeologists to the Chateau de Montsegur. It is this book, too, which is believed to have inspired the Arthurian legend, and to have projected this ancient quest into the world of today.

Therein is told the story of the wanderings of the Catharists, guarding their treasure and taking their last stand at the site of the Castle of Montsegur. They were overwhelmed by the kings armies. The last 200 of them were chained together and burned.

In the hollow mountain of the sacred Arcanum of this hand-width symbol of moral aspiration? Old-time newspapermen sometimes day-dream about the story of the ages. Which would it be: The story of the proven communication with Mars, or the soundly authenticated finding of the Holy Grail?

I suppose I would be shouted down, in this zenith of the age of reason, if I contended for the latter, but the human side of the news takes account of the human heart rather than the mind. Somehow I can't believe that the photo-electric cell ever will become the enduring and inspiring symbol which is the Holy Grail—whether it is really in the world or not.

And even in this world of science today men are moved more by symbols than by syllogisms.

WILL TO BELIEVE

Montegur may be debris and dust, but "the will to believe" does not perish. For nearly two centuries there reposed in a vault of the Chatham Phenix Bank at 107 Fifth avenue, New York, under the footfall of hurrying millions, an ancient vessel which several reputable archaeologists braved breathlessly near to Calvary.

It was the chalice of Antioch, recovered by Arab workmen in 1910 in the ruins of a church built by the Emperor Constantine at Antioch, Syria.

It was brought here in 1914 by Fahim Kouchakji, antiquarian, from Paris. Uninsured, it threaded the submarine zone, a tragic antithesis of all it had stirred in the heart of man. In 1924, Mr. Gustavus A. Eisen, distinguished archaeologist, suggested the strong possibility that it was the Holy Grail.

In this, he was supported by the distinguished Arthur Bernard Cook of Queen's College, Cambridge.

C. Leonard Wooley, New York archaeologist, wrote a book, "Digging Into the Past," in which he dissented. He believed the workmanship to be of a period possibly 200 years after the crucifixion.

The chalice is of the gold age of Hellenic workmanship, seven by 10 inches, and would contain two quarts of liquid.

CHRIST AND APOSTLES

There is a bas-relief of eleven figures, believed to represent Christ and ten apostles.

Some students have maintained that the workmanship shows the sculpture to have been executed at a period long after the original cup was made, thus sustaining the view that it was the Holy Grail, and account for Mr. Wooley's findings as to later workmanship.

It was sent to Paris to the Louvre, and then removed to the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition. There in a sleazy booth, outside the hall of religions, one could see it, for a few "Don't fail to see the Holy Grail — twenty-five cents," chanted a shrill feminine voice.

Grace was not free, here! Would the glooming Gawain unsheath his sword? Would Galahad come again? None seemed to expect them. The newspapers had no front page stories of deeds of high emprise.

The Century of Progress was the apotheosis of power—dynamic lines of force made its temples and it had no shrine for a mystic chalice of infinite Love. I seem to defeat my own contention as to the place of the Holy Grail in the heart of man. But I think of a gentle old man who paid his 25 cents and viewed the vessel of silver and gold with deep veneration.

"It is the logos," he said. "It may or may not be the Holy Grail. I dont think anyone knows or ever will know. But that is not important. It is the chalice of all the aspirations of mankind. Even if I were antagonistic, I should revere it."

The story of Calvary is man's noblest assertion of faith in the high destiny of the soul of man. Not to refute argument, it is man's greatest investment—it carries all his hopes.

The Unfinished seems to have left it in that mysterious city of Sarras, in the East. Who will find it? A scientist—a mystic—a poet?

Aviation Lags, Report of Baker Board Shows

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Edmund Burke, the British statesman, had a profound appreciation of the indispensable value of facts.

"Facts are to the mind," said Burke, "the same thing as food to the body. On the due digestion of facts depends the strength and wisdom of the one, just as vigor and health depend on the other."

One of the most interesting and useful features of the compendious report on aviation in general and American military aviation in particular which has just been made by a distinguished committee of experts, of which the Honorable Newton D. Baker, of Ohio, was chairman, is the mass of well-digested facts about aviation at home and abroad.

The Baker committee finds that there has been a remarkable development in all phases of aviation since the study of the Morrow board was completed in 1925.

In the commercial field, this progress is exemplified by the following changes between the calendar years 1927 and 1933:

"Scheduled flying other than airmail increased from 658,000 to 10,860,000 miles; miscellaneous flying from 30,000,000 to 71,300,000 miles; airmail mileage from 328 routes and 3872 scheduled miles with 24 round trips a month to 27,000 routes and 3,274,000 scheduled miles with 1328 round trips per month, approximately 40,000,000 miles per year.

"Miles flown per fatal accident have increased for scheduled flying from 658,000 to in excess of 8,550,000, and there has been a similar increase for miscellaneous flying from 315,000 miles flown per fatal accident to about 400,000."

There has also been a tremendous increase since 1926 in the crusing speed and load capacity of airplanes in the development of flying facilities and in the progress that has been made in the design and construction of aircraft and in the improvement of aircraft accessories.

Facts assembled by the Baker committee also prove conclusively that the airpline transportation and commercial aviation of the United States "is far ahead of that of foreign nations."

In its comparison of commercial aviation in this country with that of foreign countries, the Baker committee gives these highly significant facts:

"There is more transport flying in the United States, with more passengers carried annually, than in all the rest of the world combined.

"Our airline transport development has resulted in airplanes superior in design, characteristics and performance to those of any other nations. Our airline pilots are more highly trained than those of any other country. Our facilities and equipment, except as to certain types of engines, surpass all others. We lead in the development and use of navigation instruments and in our communication system."

This leadership is not confined to air-line transportation and commercial aviation. Findings of facts stated by the Baker committee reveal that the United States also leads the world in tested combat types of military airplanes and in naval combat aviation the United States leads in the number and types of planes.

The reason for this leadership in both commercial and naval aviation is to be found in the fact that the established aviation policy of the United States, which dates from the Morrow board, has been carried out in the development of commercial and naval aviation.

This policy has not been carried out in the development of military aviation. And the failure to carry out this established policy in the regard entails the best to other countries by the United States of leadership in military aviation.

In its report the Baker committee has shown the courage to face the facts about aviation. In its conclusions and recommendations for improving military aviation it has shown the wisdom to follow where the facts lead.

Whenever the President and the Congress will unite in following established aviation policy, the United States will soon again lead the world in military aviation, just as it now leads the world in commercial and naval aviation. This means more money for the training and equipment and expansion of the Army Air Corps.
